Council Expected to Act

A New Bus Line Coming Into Kingston

AARON E. KLEIN

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-Fourth Ward), chairman of the Common Council's Railroad and Bus Committee, confirmed reports today that city officials are negotiating for another bus line in Kingston.

Members of Mrs. Ludlow's Committee, which includes Joseph Conlin (D-Third Ward) and John Machione (R-Second Ward) have carried on lengthy negotiations with representatives of the Urban Transit Corporation, the company now operating buses in Kingston; Eagle Bus Lines, a company that has offered to operate buses in the city and the Public Service Commission in Albany, the agency that has the last word on bus service in Kingston.

Bus service in Kingston began in 1927 with the Kingston Transportation Corp. In September of 1963 Urban Transit was approved by the Common Council as a successor to the Kingston Transportation Corporation.

However, operating buses in Kingston was apparently not a successful venture. The public Service Commission, in a report filed in November of 1967, noted that except for 1965 when it earned a slight profit," the carrier has operated at annual losses ever since it began services in 1963."

Special

The study further indicated that the Lipton firm's operating loss for the year ending June 30, 1967 exceeded $13,800 and that despite operating economies, approached a $5,000 loss during the period ending Nov. 30, 1968.

Two years ago the PSC allowed the bus firm a five cent fare increase to 25 cents which i said would allow the company to earn "only a modest return in the next 12 months."

"We tried to help them," Mrs. Ludlow said. "But there wasn't much that we could do." Mrs. Ludlow said that the possibility of the city subsidizing the bus company was considered. "We found out after a meeting with the Public Service Commission in Albany that that was impossible," she said. "Mrs. Ludlow was accompanied to Albany by City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle and Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein in April.

About all the city could do, Mrs. Ludlow said, was to reduce the franchise tax on the bus line. The city taxed the bus line $1,500 in 1967, dropped it to $500 last year and eliminated the franchise tax this year.

Eagle Bus Lines, a company operating out of Ellenville, has offered to take over at least two of the city routes now operated by the Lipton firm. Eagle runs buses from Ellenville to Kingston, stops at the Ulster County Community College.

The 25-cent fare within the city is expected to stay the same, according to city officials. Tentative routes for Urban Transit and Eagle Bus Lines have been drawn up which show some curtailment of services in the Wilbur and Ponckhockie sections of the city.

The decision on the Eagle Bus Line proposal lies in the hands of the Common Council which may meet this week on it. Mrs. Ludlow says she doesn't expect unanimous approval. "Bus service is vitally important in this city," she said. "I realize that the proposal isn't perfect but we'd rather have half a loaf than none."

Beret-Led Viets Suffer Big Losses

SAIGON (AP)—A company of 130 South Vietnamese civilian irregulars led by American Green Berets suffered more than 50 per cent casualties in heavy fighting six miles south of the Cambodian border, military spokesmen reported today.

Within hours after the fighting ended, five waves of U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese bases and staging areas along the border north of Saigon with some 750 tons of explosives.

Seven of the South Vietnamese civilian irregulars were killed and 62 were wounded in the six-hour fight Monday three miles northwest of the Thien Ngon Special Forces camp. Four Green Berets were wounded.

American fighter-bombers and artillery came to the rescue of the embattled company and South Vietnamese headquarters said 35 North Vietnamese bodies were found afterward.

The U.S. Command sent its biggest bombers against the bases along the border in an attempt to break up preparations for a new enemy campaign expected in November.

U.S. spokesmen said the Stratofortresses hit North Vietnamese "activity, base camps, supply and staging areas" between a mile and a mile and a half from the border. The target area stretched from 65 miles north-northwest of Saigon to 83 miles north of the capital.

Earlier, four American observation helicopters were shot at in the same general area, 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon. The helicopters returned the fire with machine guns and directed artillery onto the enemy positions. U.S. headquarters said 16 enemy soldiers were killed. No U.S. casualties were reported, and the helicopters returned to their base.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, reported two days ago that "a lot of prisoner of war statements and other documents indicate there will be a winter-spring campaign." It would be a continuation of the enemy's autumn campaign, which has been marked by periods of comparatively heavy attacks alternating with longer stretches of light activity.

In the past, the heaviest attacks have been made northwest of Saigon and have been staged from camps along the Cambodian border.

Autumn Touches Down on Area Cornfield

Autumn arrived officially this morning at 7:01 and despite warm sunny days there are numerous indications that the seasonal change is upon the land. Nature has started to paint the trees in glowing hues while fields take on the look of harvest. The frost was on the pumpkin and the land in more mountainous sections of Ulster County during the past weekend. Predictions are for warm weather but rest assured the early morning chill will start to spread into crisp fall days right soon. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Judge Haynsworth-- The Battle Goes On

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Republicans groused publicly and privately today because President Nixon picked a man for the Supreme Court who has become embroiled in allegations of impropriety or conflict of interest.

Nixon selected U.S. Circuit Court Judge Clement Furman Haynsworth Jr., of Greenville, S.C., to succeed Abe Fortas, who resigned under fire earlier this year for his off-the-bench money dealings with jailed financier Louis Wolfson.

Haynsworth, who testified on Capitol Hill 1½ days last week, was recalled to the witness stand today.

Republicans led the fight in forcing Fortas' resignation. They had help from Southern Democrats.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon still stood behind the high words of praise he used in announcing Haynsworth's nomination in August.

JUDGE HAYNSWORTH JR

Twice the Justice Department has had to intervene with the Senate Judiciary Committee in Haynsworth's behalf.

First, the Department argued Haynsworth properly sat on a case involving Darlington Mills and the Textile Workers of America. He wrote a decision favorable to the mill. Critics contended he should have disqualified himself because he owned a one-seventh share of Carolina Vend-A-Matic, which did $100,000 worth of business a year with other textile plants owned by Darlington's parent company.

Secondly, the department defended Haynsworth after critics raised questions about stock purchases in the Brunswick Corp.

The department filed a lengthy memorandum contending Haynsworth's vending company holdings were too remote from the textile case to be of significance. It also argued Haynsworth's participation in the Brunswick decision ended before the stock was bought for his account.

Haynsworth has testified before the committee he had no conflicts and never sat on a case in which he had a financial stake.

Tyrrell to File Eviction Appeal

KINGSTON

The judge turned thumbs down on his eviction case but Republican Mayoral candidate James J. Tyrrell is still not out of his First Avenue apartment.

The judge, Raymond J. Mino early today, ruled in favor of Garvin Fisher, Tyrrell's landlord, who had served eviction notice on the GOP hopeful. The case was heard in county court on Friday.

However, Tyrrell's attorney, Howard C. St. John, said he would file an appeal with the State Appellate Court in Albany "sometime today." St. John said the appeal could take several months during which Tyrrell would remain in the apartment pending the outcome of the appeal. St. John added that Tyrrell would have to post a bond covering the rent during the expected time of the appeal.

There has still been no reason advanced by Fisher and his attorney, George A. Beck, for the eviction, although according to Judge Mino's ruling, it may be academic at this point. Mino said, "The notice of termination (eviction) need not specify why the landlord desires possession, whatever the landlord's motives may be for electing to terminate the tenancy."

Beck said he and Fisher would hold a press conference sometime this week to clarify their position after Beck returns from a trial in Catskill.

Tyrrell's comment on the case was, "The court's decision in essence said a landlord can claim his property without giving reason for such acts and that he may hold money offered by a tenant without accepting it. I believe this to be unfair to all tenants of the city."

Mino's opinion on the fact that Tyrrell mailed a check to Fisher was, "The tenant's unilateral action of mailing the rent check one day prior to the service of the petition . . . cannot constitute acceptance of rent, particularly since the landlord did not cash or deposit the check. The tenant's tender of the September rent was not accepted by the landlord."

Superintendent Raps 'Outside Interest'

NAPANOCH

Reports of increasing unrest and near-riot situations at the Catskill Reformatory were vehemently denied today by Superintendent Maurice Blow who, in turn, launched a counterattack at what he termed "outside interest," causing the trouble.

"We could have had problems," he said of some uneasiness over the weekend among several hundred of the inmates. "But we averted it with preventive measures."

Said About 50 Separated

Blow said that "about 50" inmates had been at the core of the problem, but had appeared before a court, composed of prison officials, and had been separated from the rest of the prisoners.

"Most of those have already been released from their solitary confinement," he said this morning. Others have been reported to be sentenced to a month of confinement.

Blow made it clear that he places much of the blame for prison unrest squarely on the heads of visitors from the outside, including members of the press and "a group that said it was from the NAACP" in Kingston.

"We have never had any trouble of this kind here before some of these people came down," he said. Blow said that several of them spoke with the prisoners, evidently bringing out thoughts and opportunity for adverse publicity.

The Freeman contacted the Ulster County District Attorney's office, but was unable to confirm reports that an investigation into the Catskill Reformatory situation will be made.

Members of the county Grand Jury toured the prison facilities last Friday, with DA Investigator Thomas Mayone, but have not yet released any report on the visit.

Some of the complaints registered by the Kingston NAACP have included the lack of black supervisory personnel, with only three non-white workers among the more than 300 employed. The prison population is more than 80 per cent non-white, further disturbing the situation.

The Kingston branch of the NAACP is presided over by Everette Hodge, who also toured the prison and is reported to be a major contributor to criticism of the facility. Hodge was not available for comment on the weekend situation.

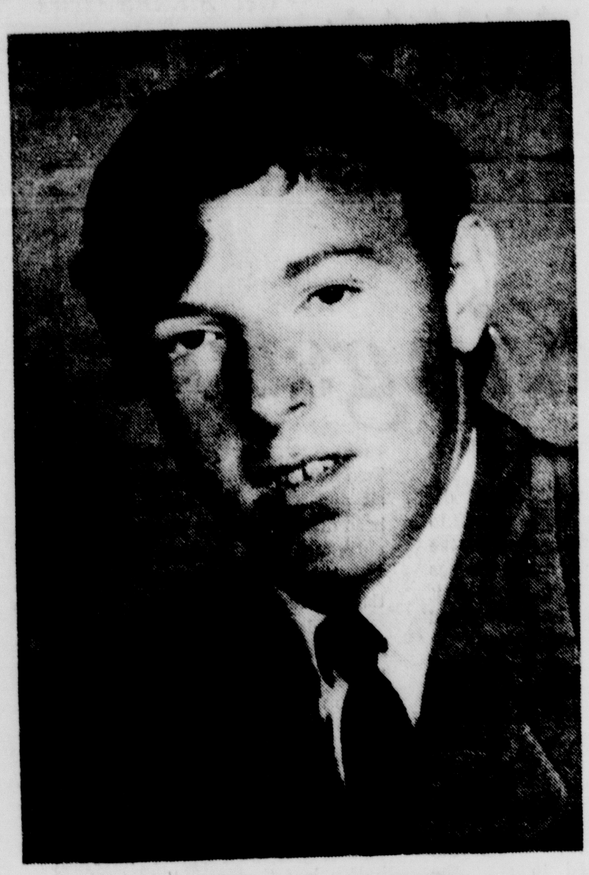

A particular problem of recent vintage is the Black Muslim movement, which is difficult to practice in prison surroundings.

A reason cited by Superintendent Blow is that the religion advocates killing of white "devils," with rewards for those who comply.

He also denied some reports of physical abuse in the prison, stating that he has never had any prisoner beaten in his 30 years in penal work.

PVT. STEPHEN E. NELSON
(UPI TELEPHOTO)

Couldn't Pull His Weight

Marine Was Beaten by Fellow Recruits

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) —A husky athlete was inducted into the Marine Corps suffering from a kidney ailment that later proved fatal. He apparently was beaten by fellow recruits because he couldn't "pull his weight," a preliminary investigation indicated today.

The Marine probe was begun when Pvt. Stephen E. Melson, 18, of Millsboro, Del., died in a civilian hospital at Charleston Sunday after telling physicians he was beaten because he couldn't keep up with other recruits.

Marine officials said Monday the initial investigation of Melson's death showed no drill instructor or supervisory personnel had physically abused the recruit.

Officials had indicated during the weekend that the investigation was pointing to one, maybe two drill instructors.

The report did not rule out the possibility that a drill instructor did not live up to his "full responsibilities" of maintaining discipline over all the trainees in his command.

"The investigation has revealed evidence which indicated that recruit members of Melson's unit may have struck him in the face and pushed him against the wall on separate occasions because they felt Private Melson was not carrying out his share of the responsibilities of the unit," the report said.

Marine officials have maintained Melson's death was caused by kidney failure and not connected with the alleged beating. They said that Charleston physicians told them "Melson's kidney ailment was unrelated to the alleged physical attack."

Melson enlisted in the Marine Corps Sept. 2. Five days later, while still undergoing processing, he was admitted to the U.S. Naval Hospital at Beaufort, S.C.

While there, he told doctors he had been suffering extreme kidney discomfort for at least eight days. He then was moved to the South Carolina Medical University Hospital for treatment by an artificial kidney machine. Marine spokesmen said Melson had somehow gotten through his induction physical without the disease being detected.

Peddles Rocky Road

ATLANTA (UPI)—Thanks to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Gov. Lester Maddox, who has gained some degree of fame for his ability to ride a bicycle backwards, won't have to peddle any more in either direction.

At the recent Southern Governors Conference at Williamsburg, Va., Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, Nelson's equally wealthy brother, gave Maddox a shiny new bicycle.

Not to be outdone by his brother, Nelson promised to send Maddox another bicycle—with a motor.

Nixon Go-Ahead Due On Supersonic Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was reported today ready to give a go-ahead for further federal spending on a supersonic transport plane attacked by critics as impractical, too expensive and too noisy.

Sources said in advance of Nixon's statement today on the plane, called the SST, that the President would recommend Congress appropriate the additional funds in order for the United States to retain its superiority in producing commercial aircraft.

Backers of the SST had called for $200 million to keep the project going fullblast through next June 30.

Opponents of the project contend much of the $600 million the government already has put out for research and design study has been wasted. They say sonic booms would make it impossible to fly the plane over inhabited areas and that the federal funds are needed to solve other domestic problems.

It is estimated another $600 million in government funds will be required before the first of two prototypes of the Boeing Corp. produced 1,800-mile-per-hour aircraft can be flight tested in 1972.

The airplane, to carry 300 passengers, would be expected to go into commercial use in 1978.

The U.S. government has acceped Boeing's revised, fixed-wing design and the company is ready to begin production this year.

Contact provisions provide the government would recover its investment after the sale of 300 planes. Boeing hopes to sell more than 500 SSTs by 1990, which would mean possibly a $1.1 billion royalty to the government.

U.S. efforts to build a big supersonic jet have been spurred by similar projects in the Soviet Union and by a British-French combine.

A Boeing official, complaining about the delay in the decision, said last month the sonic boom problem and other obstacles had been overstated.

Bob Withington, Boeing's SST program director, said the company had been working on the assumption the plane would be flown over land at subsonic speeds. And he said he thought the noise level for takeoffs and landings could be controlled.

SEEKS HELP—Mrs. Phyllis Bodie Middleton, wife of Green Beret Maj. Thomas C. Middleton Jr., of Jefferson S. C., visits Rep. Tom S. Gettys, (D-S.C.) at the Capitol on Monday. She is seeking help for her husband—one of six Special Forces members the Army will try in the next couple of months on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the death of a Vietnamese who was believed to be a Communist spy while working for the U.S. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Claims Military Loses Right To Try the Green Beret Case

SAIGON (UPI)—A civilian defense attorney said today the military had lost its right to try the Green Beret murder case by violating the constitutional rights of the six defendants.

Henry Rothblatt of New York met with the military defense attorneys in the case to plan an attempt to get the trial trasnferred to a U.S. civilian court. One of the military attorneys said F. Lee Bailey was joining the defense team.

Rothblatt's allegation that the constitutional rights of the defendants had been violated apparently refer to earlier defense statements that the Army harassed and coerced the prisoners for information while they were in a stockade.

"In this case, they (the military) are the cops and the prosecutors," he said. "They cannot be the judges, too."

Rothblatt said he hoped to have a writ of habeas corpus, seeking the trial transfer, ready for submission to a U.S. Federal Court by early next week.

Bailey agreed today to help defend Capt. Robert F. Marasco of Bloomfield, N.J., whose military defender is Capt. Thomas Young of Honolulu.

Bailey's clients have included Dr. Carl Coppolino, Dr. Sam Sheppard and Albert Di Salvo who claimed to be the Boston Strangler.

He would be the second nationally known criminal lawyer to step into the case. Edward Bennett Williams of Washington, D.C., has been retained to represent Col. Robert B. Rheault of Vineyard Haven, Mass., former Commander of Special Forces in Vietnam.

During the meeting all the defense attorneys appeared optimistic about winning an acquittal. "We should have no trouble at all," Berry said.

Military officials banned further interviews with the six Green Berets, who face charges of murder and conspiracy in the murder June 20 of Thai Khac Chuyen, a Vietnamese national whose body has not been found.

The ban followed an exclusive interview by UPI with two of the accused Special Forces officers. They said the Army's treatment of them had shattered their families' faith in the American military.

(In Washington, NBC Correspondent Robert Goralski reported on the Huntley-Brinkley news program Monday night that a roll of film captured in May in a surprise Green Beret raid on a North Vietnamese base in Cambodia led to Chuyen's murder.

(When developed, Goralski said, the film showed Chuyen, a South Vietnamese interpreter working for the Green Berets, in a friendly situation with the North Vietnamese.

(After a lie detector test and "truth serum" confirmed Chuyen's guilt, Goralski said, the Green Berets shot him in the head June 20 and dumped him on a medical stretcher padlocked to 25 feet of heavy chain.)

Soviet Resumes Barrage at Peking

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government resumed its propaganda barrages against Communist China today, ending a 12-day moratorium that followed Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's visit with Premier Chou En-lai in Peking.

The Soviet News Agency Tass accused China of concentrating more propaganda against the Soviet Union than on the imperialist struggle."

Tass said armed clashes occurred in several Chinese provinces recently and big army units were used to suppress the opponents of the present regime." It reported trials" in major Chinese cities.

Even so, the Tass attack was moderate and there was no mention of Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist Party leader reported critically ill.

Moscow Radio at the same time said in an Asian broadcast the Soviet Union was seeking better relations with China.

The latest statement indicated the Soviets had decided to respond to Peking's violent anti-Soviet propaganda while going ahead with efforts to normalize relations with China.

Since the Kosygin-Chou meeting the virulent tone of Soviet broadcasts to China have stopped.

The Tass report on Events in China" was the government's first anti-Chinese pronouncement since the Peking meeting, although the weekly journal of the Soviet Journalists' Union last Friday accused the Mao regime of shameless nationalism."

As for the Chinese, they never have discontinued their anti-Soviet outbursts. The cessation of mutually hostile attacks was one of three items in a package Kosygin proposed to Chou Sept. 11.

11th Hour PO Try

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster Gen. Winton M. Blount and the postal unions carried their battle to the 11th hour in efforts to win the first congressional test of the administration's plan to set up a business-type postal system.

Blount reportedly personally visited wavering House Post Office Committee members on the eve of today's vote to secure their support for the plan while union officials applied pressure to vote it down.

The challenge to the corporation concept came from an alternate postal reform bill, favored by the unions, introduced by committee Chairman Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y.

The corporation would put the nation's mails under a board of directors who would be responsible for all business operations, including setting of postal rates subject to congressional veto.

Dulski's plan would keep the Post Office Department intact and leave postal employes in civil service with wages set by Congress but would give the department more businesslike control over its operations.

Union Leaders to Aid Government In Construction Inflation Study

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Union leaders cautiously promised today to help a new White House commission study inflation in the construction industry. But they said high interest rates and soaring prices of real estate and building materials are far more to blame than wage hikes.

"They talk about labor costs and ignore the skyrocketing prices of land, materials, fixtures and equipment," said President C.J. Haggerty of the AFL-CIO Construction and Building Trades Department.

They condemn our wage rate increases and bless the bonanza that the money managers have engineered for themselves through interest rates that the Nixon administration has condemned," Haggerty said in an official report to the convention of the 17 building trades unions representing 3.5 million construction workers.

But a spokesman for Haggerty said building trades officials will cooperate with the White House commission in hopes of getting across labor's views on inflation.

President Nixon named Haggerty and three other building trades union leaders, along with four industry representatives and three government officials, to the special construction industry collective bargaining commission.

Nixon cited labor-management strike tensions and inflationary wage settlements as reasons for setting up the commission by presidential executive order Monday.

Construction wages, rising at a record annual pace of about 20 per cent so far this year, have reached as much as $10 an hour for skilled men in some cities.

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz, named as chairman of the White House commission, has warned that both the industry and the workers could price themselves out of the market unless the inflationary spiral is slowed.

Construction wages are negotiated locally and presidents of the building trades unions say they have little influence over pay settlements.

They argue that the federal Landrum-Griffin law, enacted to protect union members' rights, prevents them from bringing pressure on local unions.

Haggerty criticized Nixon's cutback in federal construction, saying it would lead to rising unemployment and cripple efforts to give more high paying building trades jobs to Negroes.

The construction unions issued a policy statement Monday urging all 9,000 locals of the 17 unions to take in any qualified Negro or other minority group applicants who can pass journeymen's tests.

Haggerty said the government, instead of cutting back construction, should launch a crash program to build housing and schools and meet other pressing construction shortages.

Little Contraband Many Complaints in Crackdown on Dope

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)— The government's crackdown on drug smuggling has turned up little contraband but many complaints about delays crossing the U.S.-Mexico border.

As the new policy of car-by-car and person-by-person searches went into its third day, there were delays of up to six hours in traffic jams backed up into Mexico at border points.

Treasury Department officials said U.S. Customs Agents searched 418,161 persons at 31 border stations when "operation intercept" was sprung Sunday juana smuggler.

A spokesman said this seeming lack of success actually proved that the operation was achieving its goal of "disrupting the contraband traffic and reducing the supply of narcotics and other dangerous drugs and marijuana."

The increased air, land and sea surveillance is being conducted along the entire 2,500-mile border from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific.

The first Arizona arrest came Monday night at the Douglas Border Crossing. Inspectors found 105 pounds of marijuana hidden in the roof of a van driven by Jack L. Young, 27, Billings, Mont.

The busiest border crossing is between Tiujana, Mexico and San Ysidro, Calif., south of San Diego, where delays of up to six hours were reported.

Frustrations boiled over in the long lines of cars, fist fights started and periodic epidemics of horn honking spread up and down the traffic jam.

Some drivers became sick from carbon monoxide fumes. Many vowed never again to return to Mexico.

Proposal by Stedge In Ulster Township: Reverse the Trend

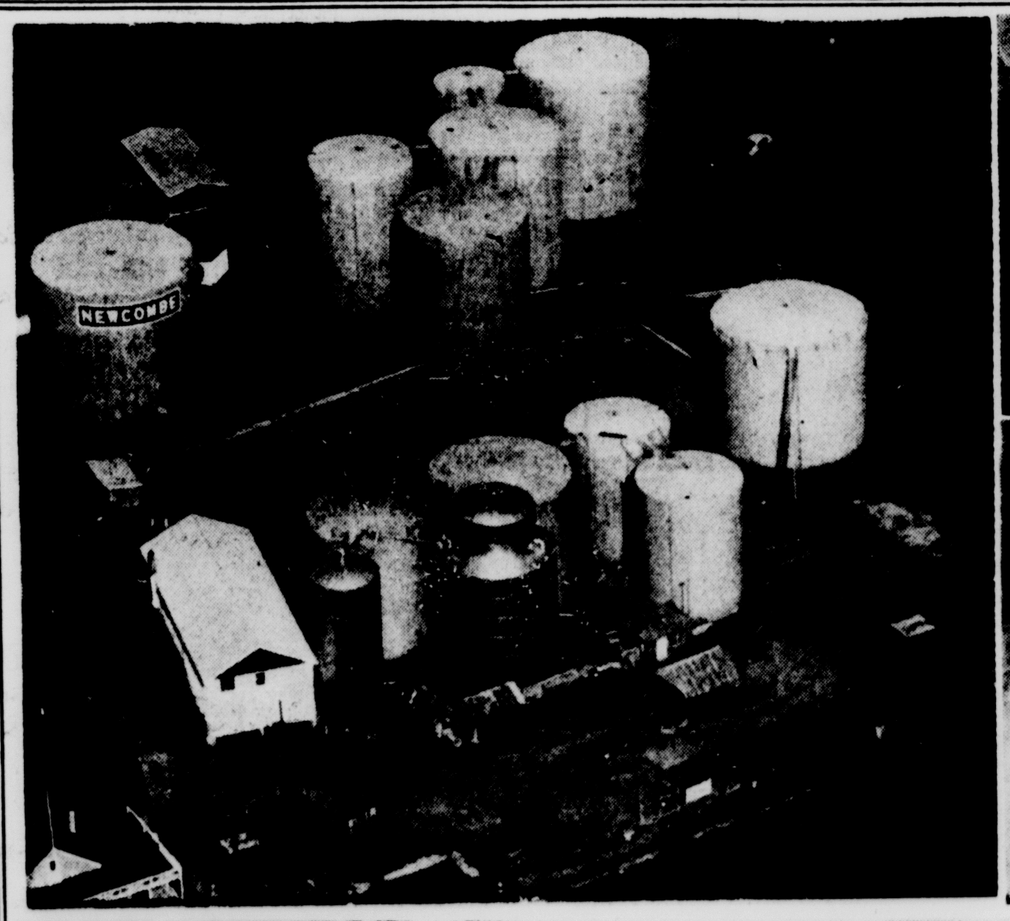

Town of Ulster Republican Planning Board Chairman Robert Stedge who recently accepted the Conservative-Democrat endorsement for town supervisor has issued a statement in connection with his candidacy.

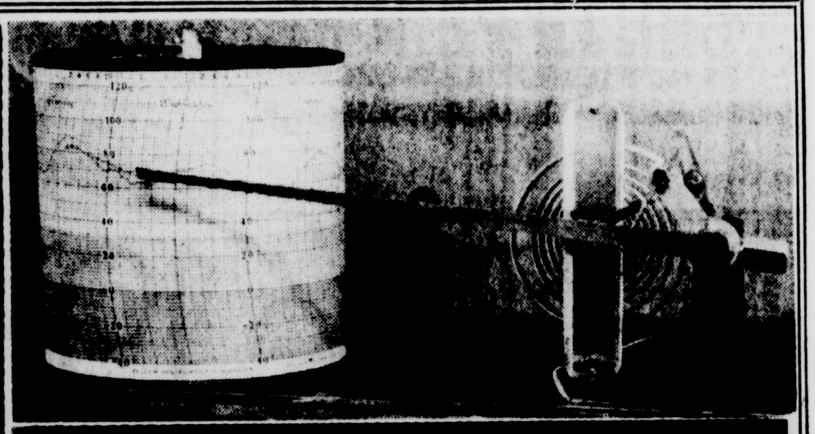

Commenting on the present Republican administration which he formerly served as town justice, Stedge said that, "it is in the field of restrictive legislation that the town board has been most lax and reluctant to pass legislation. He proposes that after adequate study and sufficient public hearings (not to exceed one year in total), legislation be presented to the board on a limited zoning ordinance the primary purpose of which would be to preserve the taxpayer's property against devaluation by action of his neighbor.

"Legislation dealing with trailers, site development, dumping and peddling would also be presented. Existing ordinances would be brought up to date and then all ordinances would be codified so that the people would know what laws they have.

Stedge added that "in the past few years there has been a trend for the supervisor to try to do everything himself. This trend must of necessity be reversed. The many extremely capable people we have in the town must be encouraged to give willingly of their time and their knowledge in such advisory capacities as the Planning Board, Park Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals and study groups with the knowledge that their opinions would count."

The town's recreation program, Stedge suggested, rather than expanding to meet the times has diminished to almost non-existence. We need a recreation program supported by a bond issue, if necessary, that would make available recreational facilities within walking distance for 75 per cent of the population and would include at least one public swimming pool.

The Vatican Views

KINGSTON An exclusive series on the Vatican's views on morality, love sex and marriage, has been obtained by The Freeman.

The first of eight articles by leading cardinals and other authorities on population and economics will begin Monday, Sept. 29.

This series, which sheds more light on the controversy aroused by the Pope's encyclical on birth control, is offered by The Freeman as a public service for people of all faiths, Protestants and Jews as well as Catholics.

The Freeman realizes the subject matter has raised world-splitting and intra-church controversy and therefore extends an invitation to those with opposing views to express themselves through this newspaper's Letters to the Editor department.

Polish-born Cardinal Wojtyla, author of the first article in the series "Crisis in Morality," feels the world is in a moral crisis that may determine its ability to survive.

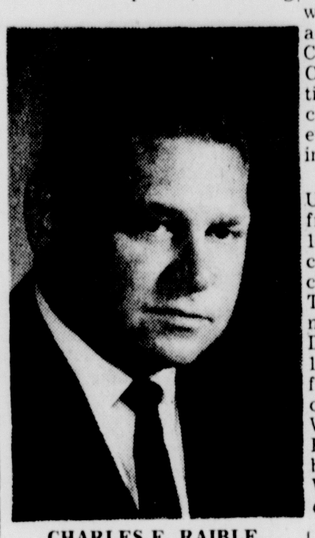

"Pope Paul in his encyclical Humanae Vitae is trying to make the world aware of this great crisis and its implications," Cardinal Wojtyla writes. "This crisis is evident in the signs of our times. The fear that the world population is growing more rapidly than the available resources provides a grave moral danger manifested in the intervention of the state in legalizing abortion and advertising and even mandating the use of contraceptives," the Cardinal states.

"Man's inherent rights are being taken away as in a totalitarian society. Beyond the economic problem there is a problem in the formation of new attitudes and a new outlook on marriage and procreation. Pope Paul declares that it is necessary to adopt solutions to these problems. Man must safeguard the true meaning of love nd sex man in human life. The Pope has the obligation to protect love, sex and the rights of man," Cardinal Wojtyla states.

The Days of Autumn

This is the first day of Autumn which marks the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the fall season. Where did the summer go?

Parents of school-age children or motorists who have passed a local school the past couple of weeks know that once more another summer season is gone. The large number of children trooping back to classes are a surer sign of summer's end than anything you can read in Mother Nature. (Incidentally, need any motorist be reminded that extra special alertness is called for now when children, school buses and schools are near?)

Many people hate to see the leaves begin to turn. But, if they will look around them when fall is in "full bloom" in this area, they will find that they are in the midst of the most pleasant seasons of the year. While there is a tang in the air, there also is a new freshness. And all kinds of activities get going once more—football, politics, club meetings and the concert season.

The summer hiatus was wonderful, but it's good to watch the leaves turn again even if it tells us that winter is coming.

Education in the '70s

In the decade of the 1970s, as the United States moves into an era when all young people will have access to college, many basic assumptions of higher education will be turned topsy-turvy. This and other predictions regarding the meaning of higher education in the next decade were made by Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California, who is now chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

PHDs, the top of today's totem pole of education, will be surplus commodities in the future. While most of them now are teachers, and are eagerly sought after in education, government, industry and the professions, there will be so many in the next decade that there will not be enough jobs for all of them.

But Kerr saw a continuing great shortage of MDs and other medical specialists. As life expectancy increases, and Medicare and Medicaid make good health generally in demand, the need for and demand for more medical practitioners will be far beyond the supply.

Kerr suggested that the federal government might well pick up the basic costs of medical education to help fill the demand. Medical students now are favored in many ways, but the promise of a fully financed medical education would probably recruit all the candidates necessary.

Kerr made his prophecy before the Southern Governors Conference in Williamsburg, Va. While the majority welcomed it because they see their region benefiting by it, there was an undercurrent of dismay that campus unrest has created a taxpayers' revolt on support for education, which can spread to support for higher education. That would hurt the South as it would the rest of the country.

Peace-Growth Dividend

Given a high employment economy, the so-called peace and growth dividend has been projected at $95 billion by 1975, at a rate of $15 billion a year for five years. At the same time, the unavoidable growth in normal expenditures over the same period—higher pay, inflationary reflections, built-in rises in some areas—would come to $45 billion. Should the war in Vietnam end between now and mid-1975, the saving would be another $20 billion. Therefore, there would be available for discretionary use something like $45 to $50 billion.

These figures were prepared at President Nixon's request by the Budget Bureau's Mrs. Nacy H. Teeters. The President wanted to know how much government discretionary spending would be possible five years from now. The conclusions were made before the President's sweeping welfare reform and revenue sharing proposals and before Congress began cutting tax rates. The study does reveal the extent of built-in or normal spending, and that is fearful enough.

Registration Dates

All eligible voters who have or will have moved from the address where they now are registered, even within the same election district, must personally re-register at their polling place. Those who are not registered also are required to do so in order to vote in the November general election.

Registration is important because it is necessary for voting. Voting is important because it is the way for citizens to take a hand in government.

The registration dates are:

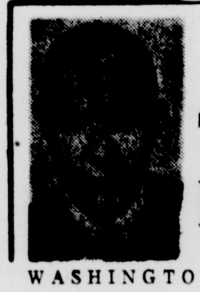

Saturday, September 27, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Saturday, October 4, 12 noon to 10 p.m.

The Post Office says 71 per cent of the mail it processes bear a zip code, of which five per cent are in error. It has begun processing mail automatically to speed zip coded mail and shunts aside those without zip code until it can be handled manually. To get mail there quickly, put the zip code on it. You don't want your mail shunted aside, do you?

Thousands of U.S. Soldiers Dying in Fruitless Task

WASHINGTON — The American people have at last been given by the highest military authority a comprehensive answer to the question often asked: "Why haven't we won the war in Vietnam?"

General William C. Westmoreland, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army, in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report this week, was asked: "Could you always fight the way you wanted to in Vietnam?"

The General was commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam for four years — from 1964 to mid-1968 — during the Johnson administration. His words now state a truth that has not been fully understood before by the nation. He said in reply to the foregoing question:

"One of the interesting things about this war is that responsibility has been divided. I had the U. S. ground war in the south, Admiral Sharpe had the air war in the north. The political, psychological, economic factors implicit in this entire equation were vested in the ambassador in Saigon and the Secretary of State. Also, operations were conducted in the territory of an ally who exercised sovereign authority over his land and his people and control of his troops.

"No U.S. authority short of the President had cognizance over the entire conflict. Therefore, the President had to get into all sorts of details. And he had many pressures brought to bear on him — numerous factors to consider: International opinion, domestic opinion, as well as the military situation. The war has been more than military. I'm not unaware of the many complex factors that had to be considered."

"Q. Is this ituation being changed in any way now?

"A. No. This is not a critical comment. It's merely a statement of fact. And it's rather difficult to support another arrangement, all factors considered. There are alternative arrangements, but it's very debatable that there would be an improvement over the arrangement that prevailed.

"Q. And still does prevail?

"A. And still does prevail."

The interview was cleared for publication at the Pentagon and the Department of State. It constitutes an admission that the United States did not exercise maximum strength.

Meanwhile, tens of thousands of American soldiers were being killed or wounded in a fruitless task. Instead of bombing all sources of supply in North Vietnam and instead of imposing a naval blockade on all ports, including Haiphong — where ships from other nations land munitions, weapons and equipment — the United States allowed a fundamental obligation of military strategy to be ignored.

Small wonder that there has arisen in Congress a sentiment to fight it out with all means or pull out. Senator Strom Thurmond, Republican of South Carolina, makes a significant comment. He was a member of the 82nd Airborne Division and participated in the Normandy Invasion in World War II, receiving five battle stars and 17 medals, declarations and awards. In a newsletter issued over the weekend, he said:

"The rapid troop build-up ordered by President Johnson in 1965 was a response to massive infiltration from the North. In every case, the U.S. reacted passively to increasing Communist pressure, cherishing the hope that the military situation could be counterbalanced while the diplomatic situation would make progress. This policy has cost us the lives of thousands of men without bringing success."

Mr. Thurmond then quoted from an article in "The Reader's Digest" in August 1964 by Richard Nixon, who wrote:

"Today, in Vietnam, we are again fighting under the same kind of self-imposed handicap....To the best of my knowledge, no competent military authorities contend that we can win in South Vietnam without denying the enemy his privileged sanctuaries across the border in North Vietnam. Few top strategists in the Pentagon doubt our ability to destroy these sanctuaries and the enemy's supply routes. Most military men are agreed that, once these routes have been cut, the problem of the Viet Cong who then will be left isolated in South Vietnam can be readily solved."

Senator Thurmond offers this suggestion: "President Nixon can win the war in 1969 by using his plan of 1964."

The big question is whether the President now will notify North Vietnam that a peace agreement must be made in Paris in the near future, or full-scale bombing by American and allied forces will be ordered.

President's Former Law Firm Is Prospering in Washington

WASHINGTON — The Wall Street law firm of Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, and Alexander — which served as the launching pad for the re-orbiting of Richard Nixon — is now cashing in on his new eminence.

There is no evidence that the President himself has lifted a telephone for his former firm or its clients. But corporations seeking federal favors are well aware of the Mudge-Rose position in the scene of things.

The prestigious old firm, having previously disdained a political practice, opened a Washington office at the same time Nixon joined the firm in 1963. Indeed, former associate Walter W. Ahrens recalls that the two events occurred on the same day, although he swears this was strictly coincidental.

Nixon's name came off the walnut door of the Washington office soon after his election. But the firm was less scrupulous about the building directory, which still contains this entry: Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Alexander, Guthrie & Mitchell."

From their plush fourth-floor suite at 1707 Pennsylvania Avenue, the Mudge-Rose attorneys — and their clients — can gaze out upon the White House. This nearness, figuratively as well as physically has been a factor in the firm's mushrooming Washington business.

No one at the firm will answer questions about its operations. The secrecy is so tight that even the building custodian is under strict orders to give out no information about the Mudge-Rose firm.

"We don't want to talk about our business," resident partner Gerald B. Greenwald told this column tersely. "The country has been treated to a rash of absolutely silly articles on this subject, and we're simply not going to talk about it."

This column has managed to dig out some of the facts, however, that the firm is trying to hide.

White House Insider

Shortly after Nixon's election, Leonard Garment, a partner, was sent to Washington to supervise preparations for the expected boom. As a former associate put it: "The firm wanted to broaden its dimensions."

Garment had close access to President Nixon all the while he was handling the law firm's expansion. There is no reason to believe, however, that he discussed law clients or legal problems with the President.

One insider explained that Garment was handling White House matters at the same time he was working for the law firm. Another insisted: "Leonard worked strictly on political chores as long as he was at the law firm."

Both agreed it was Garment's idea to join the White House staff. He was encountering difficulty getting through to the President and felt he would have easier access as a staff member. He also wanted to be where the action is.

The President advised him to remain with the law firm, pointing out he would make far more money directing the firm's Washington practice. But Garment pressed for a White House appointment. Result: He is now a "special consultant," earning $45,000 a year for his advice on human rights, minorities, and the arts.

Despite Garment's departure, the Mudge-Rose operation has continued to prosper. Late evening strollers along Pennsylvania Avenue frequently can see the firm's lights burning well into the night. It is not unusual for Mudge-Rose attorneys to sign out of the building as late as 10 p.m. Grumped one Democratic attorney: "The word is out that Mudge-Rose is 'in.'"

Former associates say the firm's Washington staff averaged three attorneys in 1967. Today there are seven regulars — Thomas Bracken, Arthur Becker, Gerald Greenwalk, David Vaughan, Robert Visser, Peter Williams and Ronnie Yoder.

The offices have been expanded to accommodate a dozen attorneys they are often filled. Acknowledged one former associate: "Several lawyers are always shuffling back and forth between New York and Washington."

Secret Clients

Former associates are just as secretive as present associates, however, about the firm's clientele. In the Martindale Hubble Legal Directory, where most law firms list their chief clients, the Mudge-Rose firm doesn't identify a single client.

This column has learned, however, that Mudge-Rose represents some of the nation's largest and richest corporations, including Pepsi-Cola, General Cigar, Cargill, Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical, El Paso Natural Gas, Eversharp-Schick, General Precision Systems, Irving Trust, Stone and Webster Engineering, Blair and Company, Investors Diversified Services, National Bulk Carriers, Matsui of Japan, Delaware and Hudson Railroad, Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, and half a dozen other railroads and maritime clients.

Almost all these great corporations, of course, deal with the federal government. Many have cases pending. El Paso Natural Gas, for example, is embroiled in an antitrust battle with the Justice Department. It must be a tremendous psychological advantage at the least to be represented by the former law firm of both President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell.

El Paso also has two big rate-increase cases, totalling almost $40 million, and 12 pipeline certificate cases now pending before the Federal Power Commission. An El Paso spokesman refused to discuss the corporation's relationship with the Mudge-Rose firms.

Spokesmen for the other client corporations were equally close-mouthed. Warner-Chilcott, a Warner-Lambert subsidiary recently in hot water with the Food and Drug Administration, would not discuss the case. The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, which now has several cases pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, had nothing to say. A spokesman at Cargill — the largest grain merchant in the United States — admitted only that Mudge-Rose has "represented us on several governmental matters in the past few months." No details.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Shifts in Students' Dissents

Health, Welfare and Education Secretary Robert H. Finch feels the prospects for a quieter campus year are very promising. Equally conscientious Logan Wilson, president of the American Council of Education, which has just finished a 400,000-student study begun in 1965, bluntly disagrees.

One of these knowing men appears bound to be as wrong as a summer oyster. Our country can only hope it isn't Mr. Finch. But I have been surprised to find that their areas of agreement are extraordinarily wide.

With our universities now reopening, they both feel that a major shift in students' dissents, which erupted on more than 200 campuses last year, will occur. They both forecast a moving away from 1968's confrontations that featured Vietnam, the draft, the ROTC and civil rights. Most of those who inflict by violence anti-academic conditions on our universities get bored easily.

Protesting conformity, they themselves are total conformists — in the way they look, dress and act, what's "in," what's "out," what they want and don't want and what they do. "Monkey see, monkey do" is a dubious formula at best. But there you are. And they usually give you the impression that they are smart enough to be under 21 and the rest of us dumb enough to be 30 or older.

Established professors or administrators, trying to reason with them, find this is like trying to get between the hog and the bucket. Many are as rabid as a werewolf on the grim night of a murderous full moon at one moment and then metamorphosed into Mary's Little Lamb the next.

To a significant degree this is what you saw at the now-famous Woodstock Music and Art Fair Festival at White Lake, Sullivan County. A New York Times (August 25) panel considered fairly typical a quote from one participant: "All my life I've had just about everything. Now I have to think how to provide it for myself. And I don't want to work because I can't have everything and do everything I want if I have to stay in the same place from 9 to 5."

Nobody with any experience in life could feel anything except pity for such waste, for such tragic blindness to the only values in life that can conceivably bring happiness, security and any real sense of contribution.

A good education requires self-discipline, and so many of today's young people simply haven't got it. They do not want to compete; they seem literally afraid to compete — in life, in anything. There are few athletes among them. They're as touchy about the fashions in causes as in their ideas. Now, for example, the whole black question seems to be "old hat." They're widely bored with this, too. They do not stay with anything very long.

As substitutes, Mr. Finch and Mr. Wilson foresee these people turning more exclusively inward on the campuses. Both believe the epicenter of their dissensions will be the universities as such — the curricula, the campuses themselves and the academic communities.

As for the faculties, it has been hard to know who was responsible for the riots, the student militants or the unsuitable faculty types — the latter smart but not wise, often arrogant and usually without any protracted professional experience whatever.

Mr. Finch thinks this loud and unsuitable faculty minority, engrossed in a popularity contest for student "Hi, fella" acclaim, has now become disenchanted with the violent demonstrators.

Nationwide, disgusted university administrations have tightened disciplinary policies and some chronic demonstrators on faculties are just plain afraid they will lose their jobs. But Mr. Finch finds additional disenchantment, particularly in the issue of accepting "unqualified" black students and teachers. Mr. Wilson appears to doubt this.

A Cornell University Trustees' study, in turn, which I have seen, shows that white students suddenly find themselves in classes with blacks who are academically unprepared — and the blacks resent it. Alumni, as well, become incensed when well-prepared white students from local schools are refused admission, but black students with "less impressive grades and records" are accepted.

Finally, the study shows that Negro programs are started in one university after another with the belief that Negroes want to be integrated with whites and acquire common values. Many do. But repeatedly the university is stunned to find—and in large numbers — that this is not true.

War-Freed Funds Already Tied to Now Existing Funds

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Debate is growing on whether the end of the war in Vietnam will free large amounts of money for new federal programs in the city slums, for the poor, the unemployed, the handicapped and for air and water pollution, cheaper housing and transportation.

The answer, of course, is that there will be more funds available for non-Vietnam projects. The catch, as presidential assistant Daniel P. Moynihan has suggested, is that most of these to-be-available postwar dollars have already in a very real sense been obligated to existing programs without anyone having ever voted it so.

That is to say, that programs already in existence will, in their "natural" growth, absord most of the money as the Vietnam war lets it go.

It is a curious thing, but many programs have virtually indestructable and unalterable growth rates of their own, sometimes almost independent of what either Congress or the administration might will.

So, in a sense, the decision on how this "new" money will be spent were made four, five, six and even 10 years ago.

Take some examples:

In 1960, federal education programs were running at about $2 billion a year. This fiscal year the spending is expected to come close to $10 billion.

In the period from 1964 to fiscal 1970, the manpower-employment programs jumped from $700 million to an estimated $3.5 billion. From fiscal 1966 to 1970 federal health programs trippled from $5.5 billion to $18.3 billion.

Social Security leaped from $13 billion in 1961 to almost $30 billion today. In the same period other "income security" programs (public assistance, unemployment insurance, veterans' compensation and pensions, federal employe retirement pay) grew from $12 billion to $19 billion.

Adding together only the spending this year (fiscal 1970) is estimated at $43 billion greater than it was just six years ago in 1964.

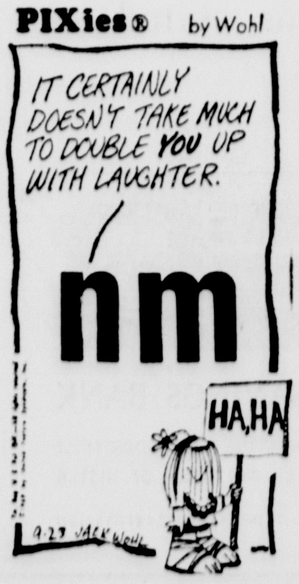

That's an increase of $7 billion a year.

At that rate, any Vietnam war savings would be eaten up in four years — or less. Yet these figures don't take account of a host of other programs, each with its own almost impossible-to-deflate growth rates — government salaries, for one.

These figures also don't take account of the demand for increased basic military spending to make up for some programs considered essential, but held back these past few years to meet Vietnam war needs.

The growth of the major social programs over the past decade or so has built in an extraordinarily large number of men and women with a vested interest in their continuation and expansion.

No matter how bad an existing social program is or how much better a proposed new program may be, many recipients believe (correctly or incorrectly) they would lose by the change. When aid programs affect millions of people, their fears about change and their pressures for more of the same can exert a powerful effect on congressmen who may depend on their votes.

A Truce of Sorts in Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Water is flowing through Jordan's Ghor irrigation canal again as the result of another secret deal between Jordan and Israel.

Informed sources said Israel for the second time had agreed to let Jordan repair the canal unmolested in return for Jordanian agreement to enforce the Arab-Israeli cease-fire in the Jordan and Beisan valleys.

Eyewitnesses reported that a 30-man crew began temporary repairs Monday and that the water was flowing again by late Monday afternoon.

The United States acted as the go-between in the negotiations, which Jordan requested, the sources said.

The 40-mile canal transports water from the Yarmuk River to northern Jordan's fertile valleys. Israeli commandos blew up a section of it on June 23 in retaliation for Arab guerrilla activity in the area. During July the United States was a go-between at Jordan's request, and Israel agreed to let the canal alone if Jordan curbed the guerrillas.

Shortly after the canal reopened, however, guerrilla activity resumed along the border. Israeli jets hit the canal again Aug. 10.

Despite the new agreement, an Israeli spokesman reported a rocket attack Sunday night from Jordan on a kibbutz four miles south of the Sea of Galilee as its residents observed Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement.

The spokesman said Israeli forces returned the fire.

The Israeli said "a few" rockets also were fired from an improvised bazooka Monday at Zafririm, 15 miles southwest of Jerusalem. No damage or casualties were reported.

In Morocco, where leaders of 26 Moslem nations were meeting in an Islamic conference, President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt said in a message that the recent fire in the Al Aksah mosque in Jerusalem was a "premeditated act" and a threat to free peoples throughout the world.

Nasser, reported ill with influenza in Cairo, is represented at the meeting in Rabat by Vice President Anwar Sadat. The conference was called in an attempt to use the fire to rally non-Arab nations against Israel. Nasser's message told them that the fire was "only one aspect of a picture which threatens not only the Arab nation but free peoples throughout the world, who are now able to measure the full dimensions of this threat."

Police Check A Complaint, Arrest 2 Men

KINGSTON

Investigation of a complaint from an East Chester Street resident Monday night led to the arrest of two men, one charged with being a parole violator.

Patrolman Ronald Natoli booked Eddie Ingram, 28, who gave his address as 236 Catherine Street, on charges of harassment, resisting arrest and public intoxication. The officer also cited David Jackson, 20, of Box 262, East Kingston, for harassment and obstructing governmental administration.

Both men were committed to the County jail pending City Court appearance.

Police reported that Patrolman Natoli was assigned to investigate a complaint that a car was blocking a driveway. He reportedly found the two men in a parked vehicle, and Ingram refused to leave the car. He was finally taken from the automobile and while walking to a police car Ingram resisted the officer. Jackson was accused of trying to prevent the arrest of Ingram, police said.

Both men were finally taken to headquarters. Later, Detective Otto Short arrested Ingram on a warrant charging him with violating parole.

Woman Hurt In Mishap on Plaza Road

Ulster Board Moves Up Meet

TOWN OF ULSTER

The regular Ulster Town Board meeting usually held the first Thursday of the month was rescheduled one day earlier, to Wednesday, Oct. 1.

The change was approved at a special meeting of the Town Board Monday night at Lake Katrine Grange Hall and called by Councilmen Anthony Cicoria and William Costello.

The reason given for the change in date was due to a conflict with the Ulster County Republican dinner scheduled Oct. 2 at the Granit Hotel. Rescheduling the Town Board meeting will permit residents who normally attend the Town Board meeting and members of the board to attend the GOP fuunction.

In other business, the dedication of the new addition to the water treatment plant at Fording Place Road was tentatively set for late in October. At that time the $485,000 plant will be open for public inspection.

Tonight the Town Board and Town Attorney Seymour Werbalowsky will meet to discuss changes in the town's trailer ordinance prior to a public hearing.

Also on Sept. 29 the board members will meet to review figures for the proposed 1970 town budget.

Hearing was adjourned until Friday, Sept. 26 at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Thompson was confined to the Ulster County Jail.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened firm today in moderately active trading.

Profit taking may be a factor following last week's gains which carried over to Monday. However, the market could muster additional support from talk that the inflationary spiral is slowing. The consumer price index in August rose slightly less than the average monthly rise for the year, and Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said there were signs "business activity was slowing."

Shortly after the opening, the UPI marketwide indicator showed a gain of 0.23 per cent on 345 issues crossing the tape. There were 152 advances and 95 declines.

Cahill Critical Of Recreation

KINGSTON

Richard T. Cahill, Republican-Conservative candidate for Alderman in the Seventh Ward, announced his concern over the "complete lack of recreation facilities" for the children of his ward. Cahill said, "it's beyond me how my incumbent opponent can sit mute in Common Council chambers while the ward children do without a park or playground of any sort, and the senior citizens do without a single bench to relax on."

Cahill also said, "I do not know where my opponent expects the children to play but I do know that I have seen children playing in the streets and upon the huge salt mountain of Tremper Avenue.

"The present Democratic Administration has placed stress on attempting to lure new business to the Uptown and Downtown urban renewal areas while overlooking the central business area. There are 17 empty stores on that part of Broadway in the Seventh Ward, and there are in excess of 25 empty stores or businesses in the entire ward," he said.

In conclusion Cahill said "these are just a few of the many ward problems which have been neglected. I believe that it is time to call a halt to silent representation and, if elected, I assure you that the Seventh Ward Alderman will be heard from in the Common Council."

Rhinebeck Seeks Reallocation of Funds

RHINEBECK — The Rhinebeck Board of Education formed a formal resolution Monday night in a letter to United States Commissioner of Education James E. Allen Jr.

The statement, composed by District Superintendent Ralph Steeves, asked for a "reallocation of funds in order to make more federal funds available" for local school districts.

When asked whether it specified where the funds would be reallocated from, Steeves answered, "That's their job."

The first School Board Institute of the Mid-Hudson Valley School Study Council will be held Oct. 14 in Fishkill. Board members were urged to attend.

Rooms were reserved in Syracuse for the New York School Boards Association conference, scheduled for Oct. 28-29.

Steeves read part of the Rhinebeck Town Planning report to members, concerned with the future growth of the community in relation to school needs. The plan stressed forethought and careful planning to accommodate students for the next 20 years.

And while bus routes are still being ironed out, a resident, Mrs. McKeefrey, gave her opinions as to the best method for a change in plans. The suggestions were taken under advisement.

4 out of 5 Americans will flunk this piggy test.

	YES	NO
1. Do you demand wages that you know are more than you're earning by the job you do?	☐	☐
2. Do you buy more items on credit than you can really afford?	☐	☐
3. Are you an impulsive shopper . . . do you buy things without looking around for the best price?	☐	☐
4. As a businessman, do you keep profits up just by raising prices?	☐	☐
5. Do you demand more government services without being willing to pay the taxes for them?	☐	☐

If you answered "yes" to any of the above, you're helping to cause a serious national problem—inflation.

Inflation can be stopped. Of course, we must expect Government to do its part. But each of us can help, too . . . by being a little less piggy.

Find out more about this problem and what you can do about it. For a free booklet prepared by the Joint Council on Economic Education, write to: "Inflation Can Be Stopped." P.O. Box 1900, Radio City Station, N.Y., N.Y. 10019.

Secretaries Group Wins Third Top Award

The Colonial Valley Chapter of The National Secretaries Association (International) has been presented with the top all-around NSA international award for Excellence in Educational Programs for the third consecutive year, its was announced by Mrs. Marie Blank, chapter president.

Miss Bertha Stronach, CPS, international president of NSA, transmitted the award to the chapter stating, "It gives me great pleasure to inform you that your educational programs over the past three years have earned for you the international Chapter Professional Development Award. It is with this kind of support that NSA will continue to enhance its reputation as the world's leading secretarial association."

Mrs. Blank stated that the certificate, after presentation to the Education Chairman of the chapter, will be kept as a permanent part of the chapter's archives. She stated. "This meritorious award was earned by the active participation of every one of our members as the award may be acquired only on a point system based on total membership participation. Actually, this is the only NSA award that encompasses an overview of all chapter activities geared toward maintaining and improving secretarial excellence of performance by means of continuing education. To meet this point schedule," she explained, "we actually were able to enter the following areas of participation on behalf of our members: a chapter member, through study, prepared for, sat and was certified as a Professional Secretary (CPS); an evening seminar, "What Makes Us Tick," was developed and conducted for all area secretaries, members of management and secretarial students; members attended professional workshops and seminars of other chapters in the state, and special educational programs were periodically held including a session on effective listening techniques, banking, stocks and the stock market, and analytical organization. In addition, points were realized through the activities of our Speaker's Bureau which is composed of the following members: the Mmes. Bea Edwards, Elsie Secor, Anne Sheeley, Gloria Starling and the Misses Edith Phillips and Lillian Styles. These members addressed student groups not only at the local high schools but also other chapters, fraternal organizations, management development conferences, and at Ulster County Community College.

For these three award winning years, the educational activities of the local chapter have been directed by Miss Lillian M. Styles, Secretarial Training Coordinator at the local IBM Systems Development Division's Engineering Laboratory. Hints from Heloise

Dear Gals:

For those of you who wear bras with cloth straps, why not do what I did?

I bought some insert lace (same on both edges) and stitched it on each strap.

I used the biggest stitch on my machine. I even used peach and pink on my white bras so that if the strap did try to peek-a-boo at the shoulder of a dress, at least it would look a little bit more like flesh, and at the same time be quite pretty and feminine.

Seems to be nothing more unsightly than a lady's white bra strap showing when it shouldn't be.

And this idea is particularly great for those who wear seethrough blouses. You could even edge the whole bra with the lace.

So look at your lace counters and see what bargains you can pick up.

Mine cost only ten cents a yard.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

This is a suggestion for the "Backyard Farmer."

When lifting and stooping has become difficult, but you would still like to work in the yard . . . just purchase a child's little wagon and attach a rope to the handle for handier pulling.

It is amazing how much easier it is to transport mounds of earth, flower transplants, cut branches, etc., all around the yard.

When not in use you can hang it flat against a wall for storage.

Mrs. B. A. Whitehurts

Dear Heloise:

Everytime somehone hears that I make all my cookies from a cake mix they want to know how I do it. Besides being easier and quicker — when you buy cake mixes on sale, these cookies are actually cheaper than cookies made from scratch!

To one cake mix of any flavor, add one or two eggs, two tablespoons of shortening, and two tablespoons water for crisp cookies, or one-fourth cup for soft cookies.

This batter can be formed into a roll and chilled, then silced for refrigerator cookies; dropped by the spoonful for drop cookies; or rolled into balls and flattened for decorative cookies.

Dear Heloise:

I find my children are always pulling the original paper off the top of thread spools, so I have always had a hard time keeping my needle handy.

Now I just put a piece of cellophane tape over the top and keep my needle stuck though this. A real time-saver.

Mrs. Fred Bredig

Black America Hopes to Inspire Negro Youth; Crowned Queen

By LINDA KRAMER

NEW YORK, (AP)—Gloria Smith's 5 feet 7, 34-23-34 figure was ample enough to help her win the Miss Black America crown recently, but it's not ample enough to satisfy her mother.

"When my mother came up to me after I won the contest," says Miss Smith, "she put down her bags and hugged me for about five minutes, all the while saying 'You're so skinny; you're so skinny.'"

Friends and casual acquaintances who had seen her in TV commercials and fashion shows persuaded Miss Smith to enter the Miss New York State contest earlier this year. After winning that title, she went on to win the national pageant, held at New York City's Madison Square Garden.

An aspiring singer, she welcomed the opportunity to perform before the large pageant audience. "I wanted a little bit of exposure," explains the 24-year-old. "To my surprise I won—I was flabbergasted by the whole thing."

"The contest would have been worth it though, even if I hadn't won," she comments. "All the girls got very close, there was a good healthy feeling. All these black women, all so beautiful and so wonderful."

No Negro has ever been a contestant for the Miss America title. Sitting poised in her chair and wearing a simply tailored white dress, Miss Smith says, "I am a black woman and I entered a black beauty contest. There have always been beautiful black women and there should always be a beauty contest for them."

Why are there two separate Miss America contests? "That question should be asked of the people who run the Miss White America pageant," says Miss Smith.

While Miss Smith was working in New York at temporary jobs and trying to launch a singing career, she did volunteer work with youths at a church in Harlem. She enjoyed helping them, and "It gave me a chance to learn about their lives, since my youth was spent in North Carolina.

"There's a feeling about the people I worked with that makes you ask yourself: 'Isn't there any motivation among them? Don't they have anything more to do except live or die?'" When she won the pageant, she remembered her thoughts and reactions of this period.

"The impact of it all hit me. I realized this was my chance to show these kids that they can make it too; that there is more to life than going to school and having babies. If I can give them incentive by my example, then I've helped," says Miss Smith.

In her role of Miss Black America, she hopes to be able to speak at high schools and to other groups of young people all over the country. "I want to avail myself of youth. My main focus as Miss Black America is what I can say, what type of message I can take back to those girls in Harlem—how I can give them a reminder from another woman, tell them they're very special and help them to have the motivation to go on."

Miss Smith, the eldest of seven children, doesn't want to make the mistake that she feels many black people who have made it into the limelight make. She says many of them fail to come back and tell the kids how they can make it, and let them know they're with them.

Her title, Miss Smith feels, is something to be proud of and she hopes to do the best job possible. Looking back on the contest, she remembered the second time she came down the ramp.

"There was this feeling of unity and spirit and enthusiasm from the audience," she recalls, her face shining, "from this one place where all these black people had come to support this thing they really believed in—it was the most beautiful feeling I've ever experienced."

A QUIZ FOR WINE DRINKERS

Wines have always had an important place in the menu of a formal dinner. But happily, Americans today are realizing that wine is delicious as an accompaniment to even the most informal meals. This is partly due to the fact that so many more people are traveling abroad than ever have before, and they are inevitably exposed to the widespread enthusiasm of the Europeans for wine. Also, our own American vineyards are producing more and better wines at reasonable prices and this has made it more available to the average family.

There are many things one should know about the serving of wine and the wine itself. Take this quiz and if you score better than six correct answers your European friends will never suspect that you may only recently have developed a taste for this oldest of beverages.

Q. Sherry, the first wine offered at a formal dinner, is served only when the first course is (a) a clear soup, (b) shellfish.

A. (a) A clear soup, and then usually only when the soup contains sherry — a consomme or turtle soup, for example.

Q. Sherry is properly served from (a) a decanter, at room temperature, (b) a bottle chilled in a bucket of ice.

A. (a) Sherry is poured from a decanter into small, V-shaped glasses.

Q. When a fish course is served before the entree, it is accompanied by (a) sparkling burgundy, (b) a dry white wine.

A. (b) Fish is best complimented by a dry, white wine.

Q. Red wine is served at formal dinners only with (a) pork and veal, (b) red meats, wild fowl, and game.

A. (b) This is true of formal dinners, but at informal dinners the host may serve either white or red wine throughout the entire meal.

Q. A bottle of red wine, if it is to be served in a basket, would be placed in the basket a day or two before serving to (a) allow the sediment to settle (b) be sure the cork is moist.

A. (a) The basket should be handled as gently as possible to keep the sediment from floating.

Q. The cork is removed from a bottle of fine red wine an hour or so before serving in order to (a) allow any bubbles to escape, (b) let the wine "breathe" and rid itself of odors absorbed in the wine cellar.

A. (b) The foil is cut away and the mouth of the bottle carefully wiped at the same time.

Q. Champagne glasses should be very thin, as thick glasses (a) are elegant enough for champagne, (b) raise the temperature and spoil the champagne's perfection.

A. (b) However, although not the most important reason, it is also true that since champagne is usually served on special occasions, fine glasses go better with fine china.

Q. The correct way to refuse a glass of wine is to (a) say "No, thank you," (b) turn your glass upside down on the table.

A. (a) In some countries the glass is turned over, but in America the correct refusal is, "No, thank you."

FALL VEGETABLE CHOICE —CABBAGE

Cabbage is a low-cost source of good nutrition among the fall vegetables. When cooking cabbage, as with most vegetables, be careful to cook them until just done. The vitamin C in cabbage can be lost through overcooking. Strong flavors will develop with long cooking, too, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist.

The following are three different recipies for cabbage soup, each different from the others. These soups are quick and easy to prepare. Try all three to see which flavor combination your family prefers.

BASIC CABBAGE SOUP

¼ pound slab bacon, diced
1 large onion, diced
½ head cabbage, shredded
2 medium potatoes, cubed
6 cups water or stock.
Salt and pepper

In a large pan, brown bacon slightly. Add vegetables. Cover with liquid, bring to a boil. Boil gently until vegetables are tender, about ½ hour. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serves 4.

GRANDMA'S CABBAGE SOUP

6 cups chicken stock
½ head cabage
1 or 2 medium potatoes
½ pound sauerkraut
8 ounce can tomatoes
Pepper

Chop cabbage, boil gently in chicken stock until just tender. Add diced raw potatoes. Drain sauerkraut, add half to soup, taste. Add more if desired. Add tomatoes. Heat. Season with pepper to taste. Serves 4.

CABBAGE CHOWDER

2 to 4 cups coarsely shredded cabbage
1½ cups diced potatoes
¼ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ to ½ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups water
2 to 4 cups scalded milk

Combine vegetables, seasonings, water. Cook covered, until just tender, about 10 minutes. Add hot milk. When ready to serve, add butter. Serves 3 to 4.

Onteora Board--A Flurry of Nays

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

BOICEVILLE

The resignation of a Phoenicia teacher touched off the biggest flurry of "no" voting among Onteora Central Schools Board of Education members in recent memory Monday night.

What appeared as a standard request from Harold Maynard, sixth grade teacher at Phoenicia School, that the board accept his resignation, "effective as soon as a suitable replacement is found, but in no case later than 30 days beyond Sept. 9," date of his letter of resignation, led to some 40 minutes of sometimes heated discussion and three separate roll call votes by the board.

It also led to charges by some board members and some parents present that Maynard was "putting the board in a bind," and Phoenicia sixth graders "in the middle." Counter-charges followed by some faculty members present that a certain "vindicticeness" was being shown in the matter by some board members.

Leaving Teaching

Maynard, in giving 30 days notice, advised the board he was leaving education to take a position in business. Phoenicia parents voiced concern that students would suffer from a change in teachers at this time; wondered aloud if a "suitable replacement" could be found now that the school year has long since begun.

Board members and some administrators were inclined to agree; argued for a written policy in the future on resignations coming after the start of the school year. Eventually acknowledging that "it's a seller's market about which we can do nothing," they nevertheless ended up voting three times on three separate resolutions before finally approving the original resolution suggested by the agenda.

When trustee Ellen Eriksson moved to accept Maynard's resignation as called for "without regret," she received a second from fellow board member Richard O. Langham. But the "without regret" stipulation proved wording too strong for the majority and the resolution was defeated by a vote of 5-3.

Langham then offered a resolution to accept the resignation as of Oct. 9. His resolution also was seconded but was defeated by a vote of 6-2. When trustee Peter W. Rakov presented a resolution worded exactly as Maynard had submitted his request by letter, it was finally passed 6-1 with one board member, W. Jack Kahn, abstaining.

Difficult Situation

While the voting obviously reflected the feeling of board members that such resignations coming after classes have begun "puts the board and the school system in a very difficult situation," at least two faculty members defended Maynard. One noted a "vindictiveness on the part of some board members" in the matter. Another pointed out that "competitive salaries and responsibility to his family" were very probable concerns which would have had to affect Maynard's decision.

The board also learned at that there has been a "definite drop-off in elementary school cafeteria lunch buying" since school lunch prices were increased with the opening of school. The board itself had approved the increase in price to 40 cents for student lunches before school reopened.

Trustee Langham, however, voiced considerable concern that students must now "buy a 40 cents package or nothing."

He insisted that "at 40 cents a day we should not make rules which deny a child the chance to buy just a sandwich...or sandwich and milk...or sandwich and dessert." He argued for a la carte prices which would allow students the opportunity of spending 25 cents instead of 40 cents. With prices now so high, he said, "bear in mind that some people may not feel they can afford 40 cents every day if they have three or four children in school." Langham contended these people should be given the opportunity to buy less.

Questioned Quality

When some parents chimed in that youngsters were complaining this year that the "quality of the lunches had dropped," and others asked why salad or fruit had replaced soup in the package deal, the board agreed to take another look at the entire situation.

Trustees requested from the administrative staff a "full report on cafeteria policy" and on single purchases as opposed to package buying.

A full report was also asked by the board from the administration for the October meeting covering tests required for school bus drivers in the past, presently, and for the future.

This followed considerable discussion by some parents present in the wake of a minor accident recently in Woodstock in which a school bus backed into a grassy ditch attempting a turn on a mountain road. Among other things, parents suggested the test for bus drivers "is not sufficient for driving procedures absolutely neccessary in mountainous terrain." They also suggested that other drivers should have nothing to say about "firing of any one driver because of incompetence," and that the school system should not be "too hasty to downgrade the judgment of children involved" as witnesses in any accident...or the "observations of any mothers concerned."

The board went into executive session on this matter at 11 p.m. following adjournment of the regular meeting.

Tyrrell--Safe Streets Plan

KINGSTON

James J. Tyrrell, Republican candidate for mayor, has called for a "safe streets program" in the city that would insure the safety of all residents through preventive maintenance programs.

Tyrrell recommended a joint effort between the president of the Common Council, the board of police commissioners and the police chief for "a substantial program" to protect city residents in the 1970's.

Tyrrell envisions several permanent steps including cooperation between businesses, adequate lighting, additional patrolmen, balanced recreation, more police equipment and a permanent emergency telephone number.

The candidate also announced the appointment of several volunteer ward captains for his campaign.

They include Clarence Perry of 3 Grandview Avenue (First Ward); Robert Winne of 280½ Washington Avenue (Second Ward); Emile Taiclet of 293 Greenkill Avenue (Third Ward); Gilbert Adin of 18 Manor Place (Fifth Ward); Anthony Crespino of 231 Clifton Avenue (Sixth Ward); John Mazzucca of 15 Stanley Street (Eighth Ward); Mrs. Angeline Carputo of 34 Hutton Street (Ninth Ward); Mrs. Carmella Kelderhouse of 170 Delaware Avenue (10th Ward); James Kiernan of 37 Broadway (11th Ward) and Daniel Bittner of 232 W. Chester Street as 12th Ward captain.

WILLIE'S 600TH — Willie Mays watches the ball (at top arrow) as his 600th home run goes out of the park. Mays hit it in the seventh inning off Padre Pitcher Mike Corkins. Padre Catcher Chris Cannizzaro and umpire Frank Dezelan are at the plate. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Mays' 600th Saves Giants

In moments of crisis, it is to the veterans that baseball managers instictively turn and when a manager has one of the game's greatest veterans on the bench he can make his move with supreme confidence.

It was that way for Clyde King of the San Francisco Giants Monday night, and all King had to do was call on Willie Mays.

The magnificent Willie responded with a seventh inning home run with a man on base, and the Giants had maintained their .004 advantage over the Atlanta Braves in the delirious race for the title in the National League's Western Division.

It was the 60th homer of Willie's career and it gave his Giants a 4-2 win over the San Diego Padres. The victory offset the Braves' 5-3 triumph over the Houston Astros.

What had been a four-cornered battle in the West narrowed to the Braves and Giants because the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds were cutting each other up. The Reds pushed the Dodgers down to fourth by winning 2-1 with a two out, two run rally in the ninth, but the Reds are now four games back of the Giants and the Dodgers four and a half.

Mays, second only to Babe Ruth's 714 in all time home-runs, came on to pinch hit for rookie leftfielder George Foster in the top of the seventh with the score 2-2 after Ron Hunt had beaten out an infield hit to deep short. Willie smashed the first pitch by Padre rookie right hander Mike Corkins 420 feet into the left center field stands.

The crowd of only 4,779 gave Mays a five minute ovation, persisting until the had come out of the dugout twice to doff his cap. He continued in the game for the final innings, but popped out in the next trip to the plate.

The homer gave Don McMahon the win, his third against one defeat. McMahon had replaced starter Ron Bryant, who left in the sixth after pulling a muscle.

The Braves won their 11th of their last 14 in downing the Astros as Phil Niekro won his 21st against 13 losses. A weird seventh inning saw an Astro rally die because Norm Miller, on third after Houston had scored twice, broke for home when Brave catcher Bob Didier apparently had been guilty of a passed ball. Miller thought the white object hurtling past Didier was the ball, but it was a protective finger guard and Miller raced to the plate, only to be tagged out.

In the Eastern Division, the New York Mets continued their astonishing drive to the title by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1. Tom Seaver won his 24th game on a five hitter and also drove in the decisive run.

Seaver and Nelson Briles dueled through 5 1-2 scoreless innings before Tommie Agee's single, an error, a passed ball and Art Shamsky's single gave the Mets their first run.

In the seventh, Jerry Grote, Bud Harrelson and Seaver brought in the second run and Agee's grounder then scored Harrelson. The Cards got their tally in the eighth on a double by Julian Xavier, a single by Vic Davalillo and a ground out by Bill White.

Twins Take AL Western

The Minnesota Twins, triggered by Harmon Killebrew's 47th homer of the year, edged the Kansas City Royals, 4-3, Monday night to clinch the Western Division title in the American League.

Killebrew's homer came in the fourth inning and tied the score at 1-1. It also gave him the major league lead in homers, one more than Reggie Jackson and Frank Howard.

The Twins scored another run in the fourth on Bob Allison's double and a pair of fly balls and they made it 3-1 in the fifth on a double by Leo Cardenas, a sacrifice and Cesar Tovar's single.

What proved to be the winning run, however, came in the ninth on a walk to Frank Quilici and singles by Tovar and Tony Oliva.

Bob Miller retired 15 Kansas City batters in a row before Bob Oliver singled in the eight, but he needed ninth inning help from Al Worthington to attain his fifth victory over seven innings and the Royals scored twice in the ninth but Oliva helped to quell the rally when he threw out pinch-runner Scott Northey when Northey overran second base.

Mike Gorman, making his first major league appearance, limited New York to five hits.

The Boston Red Sox rallied for four runs in the fourth inning to overcome the Yankees 4-3.

A single by Tony Conigliaro and a triple by George Scott were the big blows during the Red Sox uprising as they tagged Fritz Peterson with his 16th loss.

Greg Cook-He's Just Fantastic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greg Cook, Jim Mitchell, Warren Bankston, Don Herrmann, Calvin Hill, Roger Staubach, Ron Johnson, O.J. Simpson. It's looking like professional football's Year-of-the-Rookie.

Cook, a 22-year-old quarterback for the 2-year-old Cincinnati Bengals, passed the experienced San Diego Chargers dizzy. He hurled scoring strikes of nine, 78 and 39 yards and ran nine yards for another score in the Bengals' 34-10 shocker Sunday.

"Cook was fantastic," said Bengals' Coach Paul Brown. "He just doesn't play like a rookie. He is not an ordinary young man."

Cook, the Bengals' first-round draft choice from the University of Cincinnati, completed 14 of 22 passes for 292 yards.

A 235-pound tight end from Prairie View A&M, Jim Mitchell, was given the game ball for his part in Atlanta's 34-12 upset over San Francisco. Mitchell caught touchdown passes of 13 and 42 yards in the Falcons' first triumph in six league games against the 49ers and their first victory ever on opening day.

"I thought it would be a little tougher than this but it was tough enough," Mitchell said.

Pittsburgh fullback Warren Bankston, a 225-pounder from Tulane, got his chance after injuries sidelined Dick Hoak and Don McCall.

He fumbled twice, setting up a field goal and a touchdown for Detroit, but he roared over from the six for the winning touchdown in the clutch in the 16-13 startler.

"My brother came up from Louisiana when he heard I was going to start and I told him I was going to score and throw the ball in the stands," Bankston said.

The ball cost $25 and Steeler Vice President Dan Rooney said Bankston will have to pay $100 for his exuberant antic, as is the league practice. But he smiled as he said it.

Don Herrmann, a receiver from little Wayneburg, Pa., State, scored two touchdowns in the last five minutes as the New York Giants stopped Minnesota 24-23. Herrmann ran over on a 16-yarder from quarterback Fran Tarkenton, making the score 23-17 and then in the last 59 seconds Tarkenton caught Herrmann open in the end zone with a 10-yard pass that clinched it.

Herrmann said he was thinking about one thing during those final minutes: "A loser is a player who sits around hoping someone else makes the big play. A winner is someone who wants to make it himself."

Calvin Hill, the Cowboys' first round draft choice from Yale, broke open the St. Louis-Dallas game in the third quarter with a halfback pass, a perfect 53-yard touchdown throw to speedy Lance Rentzel. It boosted the Dallas lead to 14-3 and the Cowboys went on to win it 24-3.

"Hill threw a helluva pass," said St. Louis safety Larry Wilson, who was beaten on the play.

Hill, a 6-4 220-pounder who also gained 70 yards in 18 carries, said of the touchdown pass:

"It spiraled, and it usually doesn't do that in practice. I just kept thinking, don't overthrow him."

Hill wasn't the only Dallas rookie to deliver.

Roger "The Dodger" Staubach, the starting quarterback, connected on a 75-yard touchdown pass to Rentzel in the first period and ran three yards for another score in the fourth.

"We let a rookie quarterback and a rookie halfback beat us," grumbled Cardinal Coach Charley Winner.

Ohio State Is Rated Top College Team

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Houston, regarded as the nation's seventh best college football team before the action started, suddenly is nowhere while unheralded Florida, the Cougars' spoiler, became an instant somebody on the strength of its opening game.

Houston vanished from the top 20 rankings after dropping a 59-34 shocker to Florida and its strong-armed sophomore quarterback John Reaves. The Gators received two first votes in Monday's weekly balloting by sports writers and broadcasters and zoomed into 12th spot.

Ohio State, the defending national champions, held on to first place with 25 of 36 possible first place votes, and 632 points, even though the Buckeyes don't open their season until Saturday when they host Texas Christian.

Arkansas and Penn State traded places as prime contenders to the throne, despite opening victories for both. Penn State pounded Navy 45-22 which was good for five first-place votes, 548 points, and a shift from third to second.

Arkansas, which blanked Oklahoma State 39-0, received one first-place vote and 513 points and dropped from second to third.

Missouri squeezed past the Air Force 19-17 but dropped from 10th to 11th while Indiana moved from 14th to 10th after outlasting Kentucky 58-30. Notre Dame's 35-10 victory over Northwestern was good for a jump from 11th to ninth.

Texas, Southern Cal and Oklahoma remain fourth, fifth and sixth respectively after beating California, Nebraska and Wisconsin. Georgia moved up from eighth to seventh after blanking Tulane and Mississippi climbed to eighth from ninth after trouncing Memphis State.

Two new teams joined the second 10. Arizona notched 18th position after whipping Minnesota and Michigan grabbed 20th place by beating Vanderbilt. Minnesota, which had been 19th, dropped out of the picture.

Completing the rankings are Michigan State, 13th; UCLA, 14th; Alabama 15th; Auburn, 17th; and Tennessee, 19th.

High School Blanks Coleman in Soccer

KINGSTON — Kingston High school's soccer team applied a great deal of pressure on the John A. Coleman High school goalie, Don Hastings, and tallied five goals to defeat the home side, 5-0, Monday.

It was the second straight victory for Coach John Hunter's Maroons, who scored an impressive 1-0 victory over Arlington in its 1969 opener.

Hastings did a superlative job in making 33 saves, however, he received little support from his teammates as time and again the Maroons drove the length of the field for goals and goal attempts.

On the other hand, Kingston's defensive play was near perfect as goalie Jim Corsones had to make but one save throughout the entire contest.

The winners started their onslaught at 10:10 in the first period as Harry Wynkoop moved down the sideline to score unassisted.

Kingston added two more in the second period, the first one coming on a 25-yard chip shot by Brian Devine, that hit into the upper corner. With 14:30 gone in the same period, Devine dribbled the ball up field, passing to Pad Nugent. Nugent then slipped the ball over to Brian Williams who put the topper on the finely executed play by tapping it in in front of the goal.

The third period saw much of the same play, with the winners dominating all the way. Larry Feeney carried the ball down the left wing and passed into the middle to Nugent. Nugent got a good toe on the ball and then fired it home for the fourth goal of the game.

Vic Naklichi took matters into his own hands at 5:09 in the fourth and final period as he dribbled through the Coleman defense for 40 yards and then hammered one home from 10 yards out.

Kingston will play their next game against Poughkeepsie on Wednesday at Loughran Park, starting at 4 p.m.

Hunter Pleased

"It was a solid team effort," said Coach Hunter following the hard-earned victory over Arlington Central in the seasonal opener.

A goal by Brian Williams with an assist from team captain Brian Devine at 2:33 in the fourth period, nailed down the Maroon win.

"Devine did a nice job bringing the ball down the middle of the field between the fullbacks," Hunter explained, "and passed off to Williams who booted it in. It was a fine play."

Kingston goalie Jim Corsones had 12 saves, as the Maroon got off 18 shots to Arlington's 19. Corsones was outstanding for the Maroon.

Kingston's Jayvees nipped Arlington Jayvees, 2-1, with a pair of third period goals by Pete Boyd, one with an assist from Gary Ennis. Arlington scored in the 4th quarter.

Coleman Places 8th at Mangus

BEAR MOUNTAIN — John A. Coleman High's cross country team placed eighth in the varsity division in the Alberta Magnus Invitational Meet at Bear Mountain. The Kingstonians placed sixth in the Jayvee division.

Eleven schools participated in the event, with Alberta Magnus winning both varsity and jayvee competition.

Two new records were set for the long, 2.5 mile course. Charlie Forys of Washingtonville set a new varsity standard in 13:46, while Todd Dolan's 15:34 was a new record for Jayvees.

Odd as it may seem Steven Peruso of Coleman's Junior Varsity had a better time than any of the varsity men as he ran the tough layout in 17:02 to place 16th in the J. V. class. Other J. V. times were: Tom Ryan, 36th-18:34; and James Aidala 43rd-19:22. There were 88 runners in the J. V. competition.

In the field of 80 varsity runners, Mike Droulette was the top Coleman runner with a time of 17:03 for the 39th position. Other times were Patrick Nee 17:12-41st; Don Tegler 17:38-46th; and John Jasinski 18:05-48th.

"I feel the boys did well for only having three seniors on the team and a lot of the freshmen looked real good, said Coach Ken Ward."

Will Deputize Cops For Riot Trial Duty

CHICAGO (UPI) — Federal authorities will deputize Chicago policemen as marshals to handle security and keep peace during the trial Wednesday of eight persons charged with conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Radical leaders, meanwhile, continue to organize demonstrations.

U.S. Marshal John Meiszner said Monday some Chicago policemen would be deputized and federal marshals would be brought here, though he did not say how many, for duty at the Federal Building during the trial. It was not known how many Chicago policemen would be used.

Meiszner's announcement came after a meeting between U.S. Atty. Thomas A. Foran; Marlin Johnson, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here; Police Supt. James B. Conlisk Jr.; Chief Judge William Campbell of the U.S. District Court; and Meiszner.

Seventy-five newsmen and 100 spectators will be searched before entering the courtroom and the newsmen will have to enter through a cloakroom, he said.

Leonard I. Wienglass, one of the attorneys for "The Conspiracy"—the name taken by the defendants—said the defense will ask a larger courtroom be assigned. "One-hundred spectators is a virtual lockout," he said.

Radical leaders, meanwhile, continued pressing plans for demonstrations during the trial.

Indicted with Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman are fellow Yippie Jerry Rubin; Rennie Davis and David Dellinger of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam; Black Panther Bobby Seale; Tom Hayden, a founder of the Students for a Democratic Society and university professors Lee Weiner and John Froines.

Anti 'Pig' Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. plans to introduce his first bill — a measure to present distinguished policemen with presidential citations as a means of discouraging young people from referring to police as "pigs."

"The reference to policemen as barnyard animals will continue from a small group of extremists," the California Republican said, "but we should do everything we can to be sure it doesn't creep into the vocabulary of the average young American."

Three Cases In City Court

KINGSTON

Frederick W. Kelly, 18, of 21 Elizabeth Street, pleaded innocent Monday before City Judge Hubert A. Richter to a charge of third degree burglary. He was committed to the county jail in lieu of $500 cash or $1,000 property bond bail and hearing was adjourned until Wednesday.

Kelly was arrested early Sunday by Officers Edward Coughlin and Thomas Scarey who said they caught the youth in the Elm Diner at Greenkill Avenue and Wall Street. The place had been entered through a back door in which the glass was smashed.

Judge Richter also adjourned the case of Addis Rachel Borries, 43, of 672 Broadway, who was charged with harassment on complaint of Jose Silva of this city. He accused the woman of biting his finger during an argument Sunday.

In another case, Juan Cruz, 47, of 240 South Wall Street, pleaded innocent and received an adjournment for hearing on Oct. 7. He was cited for leaving the scene of an accident, drunken driving, unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and driving an unregistered motor vehicle. The charges were filed early Sunday after Cruz allegedly drove away after knocking down a barricade at North Front and Fair Streets.

Uncertainties Plague Schools On Desegregation Practices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Depending on which Robert H. Finch you listen to these days, termination of federal aid to segregated southern school districts is:

1. A keystone of the now-jelled civil rights policy of the Nixon administration.

2. Suspended pending completion of a probable government appeal to the Supreme Court—a process that could take several months.

The differing, but not necessarily contradictory, readings on aid cutoffs illustrate the continuing uncertainties that plague the administration's school desegregation practices.

The administration's July 3 statement on school desegregation policies was widely interpreted as a death knell for HEW cutoffs.

The administration said it would henceforth place primary reliance on the Justice Department for federal court orders to end dual or segregated school systems in the South. Cut offs were downplayed.

But HEW Secretary Finch has since indicated a new and expanded role for aid terminations.

The government, he says, will insist that deadlines for complete desegregation be included in all court orders.

HEW will offer its help in developing plans to meet the deadline, Finch explained. If the deadline is ignored, HEW will move to terminate federal aid, he says.

Finch argues this departs from past practice: Existing court orders generally do not contain deadlines—and are accordingly ignored. Until now, HEW has not cut off aid to districts under court order.

One government source refers to the new policy as "whiplashing" recalcitrant districts: Hitting them with both a court order and a fund cutoff.

But there's a hooker in this new policy, Finch indicated Sunday he will cut off no more aid until the Supreme Court reviews a decision of the U.S. 5th Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The appeals court rejected the government's practice of assuming blanket discrimination in all federally aided programs on the basis of faculty or study segregation.

HEW must make separate findings of discrimination for each of the 23 different aid programs a district may receive, the court said in the case of the Taylor County, Fla., schools.

After almost a month of deliberation, Finch decided to recommend appeal. The solicitor general, however, has final say on whether the government considers its case strong enough for appeal.

Finch has ordered his hearing examiners to take a second look at discrimination cases involving 39 southern school districts in light of the Taylor decision. The examiners had recommended all 39 lose their federal aid.

"The appeal could take weeks or several months," said one highly placed government source. "In the meantime the cutoff business is going to be pretty confused."

Decision Reserved On Venue Request

ALBANY

Decision was reserved by the justices of the Appellate Division, Third Department, on Monday after arguments on motions for a change of venue for the trial of Charles Culhane and Gerald McGivern, both 24.

McGivern and Culhane are charged with murder in Ulster County in connection with the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff William Fitzgerald, 63, of Tarrytown, on the Thruway in the Town of Plattekill on the afternoon of Sept. 13, 1968.

Edward T. Feeney, counsel for McGivern, and Charles J. Saccoman, Kingston attorney representing Culhane, contended that their clients could not have a fair trial in Ulster County because of the publicity about the shootout in the press and on the radio and television.

Feeney and Saccoman submited more than a dozen exhibits to strengthen their contention, and both asked the justices to grant their application to move the trial to some oher county.

Dist. Atty. Joseph P. Torraca opposed the motion and during arguments told the Court that in his opinion the two defendants could get a fair trial in Ulster County.

A decision is expected within the next few days.

McGivern and Culhane, who are confined in the Green Haven Prison in Stormville were accused by State Police of taking part with another prisoner in the shootout that took the life of the Westchester County deputy sheriff and wounded another deputy, Joseph J. Singer. The third prisoner, Robert Bowerman, was killed during the shootout.

The three prisoners were being taken to White Plains from Auburn Prison to testify at a hearing when they made their unsuccessful attempt to escape.

McGivern was serving 10 to 20 years for robbery, assault and grand larceny, and Culhane was serving 7½ to 10 years for robbery when the Plattekill shootout occurred.

Report Thefts At UCCC Site, PE School

STONE RIDGE

Thefts of a contractor's level from a construction site at the Ulster County Community College, and cash from teachers' desks at the Port Ewen School, are under investigation by the sheriff's office.

A foreman for G. H. Swart, Inc., 260 Fair Street, complained Monday morning that a level valued between $250 and $400, had been taken from the college site sometime over the weekend.

The sheriff's men also are investigating a complaint from Robert P. Graves, principal at Port Ewen School, who reported the building had been entered during the weekend and the intruders ransacked teachers' desks and stole small amounts of cash.

Mohawks Want Hickel Removed From Office

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—Some Mohawk Indians on the St. Regis Reservation in New York have unveiled petitions and brilliant pink bumper stickers in a move started out west to have Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel removed from office.

The Mohawks joined western Indians in the movement that began when Hickel announced plans to drain Pyramid Lake in Nevada. The lake, about 20 miles from the California border and 25 miles north of Reno, lies within the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation.

California Indians opposing the proposal say it will lead to the replacement of Indian life and culture in favor of U.S.-style hamburger stands, gambling palaces and pollution-belching industry," according to the petitions.

The Committee for Traditional Indian Land and Life in Los Angeles began the protest out west. It was not known who began circulating the petitions on the St. Regis Reservation. They appeared this weekend.

The bumper stickers read: "End the War on Indians—Impeach Hickel."

Bell to Attend Conference on Redistricting

KINGSTON

Reapportionment of congressional districts and the perhaps subsequent redistricting of New York's assembly and senatorial districts will be the subject of a full conference of Republican state assemblyman at Albany this week and will be attended by Ulster's Assemblyman H. Clark Bell.

Bell will also attend another hearing on the Taylor Law Thursday as it pertains to teachers. The author of the measure will be guest speaker.

A third hearing, on the concept of the ombudsman will take place in Albany and Long Island. Sponsored by the Senate Finance Committee the hearing will deal with the fiscal implication in the creation of such an office.

Bell will attend the Albany meeting.

Used Cars for Sale

Introducing A Used Car Guarantee . . . It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we-pay-half-you-pay-half deals."

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and Performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade-in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1,000 miles.

What kind of cars get our guarantees? All kinds. Chevys, Fords, Ramblers, VWs. (We get all kinds of trade-ins for new Volkswagens).

So. The next time somebody tries to sell you a used car that's "just like new," ask about the guarantee. Then remember us.

No, our used cars aren't "just like new." No used car can be. But no used cars could be in better shape, either.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of a little incident that happened to us. To this day I still can't believe it.

First, let me explain that I am 22, my husband is 24, and we have a four-month-old baby. My husband and I set out for a drive-in movie, and we took our baby with us.

Outside the drive-in theater was a sign saying "NO ONE UNDER THE AGE OF 17 ADMITTED!"

Well, a policeman stopped us outside the gate and said we couldn't take our daughter into the theater because she was under 17.

Now, Abby, I mean, what is a four-month-old baby going to see and tell? Wouldn't you say that was going a little too far?

SPRINGFIELD, VERMONT

DEAR SPRINGFIELD: I think the policeman was being somewhat unreasonable. But had there been a "babes in arms" clause tacked on to the ruling, you'd probably see nine-year-olds carried in by their parents.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: We have a wonderful daughter whom we have not permitted to date until she reached 16. (Louise was allowed to go to boy-girl parties, but not "date" in a car with just one boy alone.) She is a fine, bright girl, very pretty, with high moral standards and she accepted our decision without whining or rebelling.

Our problem is that the first boy Louise dated on her 16th birthday is a 22-year-old college MAN. Her father says he is too old for her. Of course Louise is upset over this. We have nothing against the boy. He is very nice and comes from a good family, and we like him as a person, but not as a constant companion for our daughter. An occasional date would be all right, but these two don't care to see anyone else. We are afraid Louise will want to get married and throw away her chances for a college education.

Are we wrong to try to keep them apart?

LOUISE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Not only are you wrong, I doubt if you can do it. You could demand that Louise date others and just to please you she may "go thru the motions." But if she has already lost her heart to this young man her feelings for him would probably only grow stronger. But don't worry, if Louise has high moral standards and is bright, she'll not rush into anything prematurely.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say a few words to HAD IT, who griped about having to pick up the tab when he dates a woman.

I say, a man who wants the pleasure of dating a lady who has gone to the trouble and expense of making herself attractive, well-groomed, and stylishly dressed, had better be prepared to put his hand in his pocket.

Otherwise, let the idiot stay home and sit in front of the mirror and enjoy looking at the one he loves the most.

All the good men are either dead or married. And only half the married ones are good.

ALSO HAD IT

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I would gladly pick up the tab for a date in exchange for the privilege of asking the man out instead of waiting to be asked, or maybe never being asked by the ones I prefer. Also, for the privilege of earning enough money to be able to afford it!

Women are still being treated as second class citizens when it comes to jobs. When women are treated as equals, we will gladly accept ALL the responsibility that goes with it.

A WOMAN IN K. C.

Jean Adams'

TEEN FORUM

Tuesday, Sept. 23—Jean Adams' Teen Forum—

PETTING: (Q.) I know what necking is, but I'm not sure about petting.

I would like to have you explain to me the difference between light petting and heavy petting. Where they separate isn't very clear to me.—L. in California.

(A.) Different people have different measuring sticks for different kinds of petting. The truth is that petting is progressive, and measuring it or making it stick to rules is not always simple.

Sometimes a girl discovers too late that light petting was heavier than she thought.

Stick with necking—or less. If a boy holds your hand or your arm, or puts his arm around your neck, that's OK. If he puts his hand or hands on any part of your body below your shoulders, that's too far. If he starts exploring, blow the whistle in a hurry.

SHORT STORY: (Q.) I don't have long hair and I don't stay out late at night. But I do wear knee socks and shorts. I wear them because I like to. A boy I know teases me about wearing them.

He's not anything on a stick himself, because the long pants he wears are way to short. But he teases me every day, even if I'm wearing shorts. I try to ignore him, but I can't take his teasing. What can I do?—T. in Clark's Summit, Pa.

(A.) You are doing exactly right, and if you can hold out a little longer without getting angry or teasing him back, he will give up.

He feels badly about something and he wants somebody else to feel bad, too. If he can't get you to join him, he'll hunt somebody else to get his hooks into.

Today's hand plays easily at six spades. Declarer can play safe by ruffing two clubs in dummy and discarding his last club on the queen of diamonds. Of course, a diamond lead will frighten him but won't hurt, since trumps break 2-1 and diamonds 4-2.

Bidding to the slam is another problem. When this hand was played in the Eastern championships, only three pairs out of over a hundred got to this laydown slam.

One pair got there by means of the bidding shown in the box. It looks crazy but, judging by the results, maybe North and South were crazy as foxes.

They happened to be using fragment bids, plus Italian-type control bidding in which they show their cheapest first- or second-round control. Thus North's bid of four clubs showed a singleton club and strong spade support.

South didn't have much but knew that North's singleton club would fit perfectly with his four little ones, so felt that his hand was worth some slight slam try. His four-diamond bid, therefore, showed slam interest and first- or second-round diamond control.

North felt strong enough to make a slam try of his own by bidding four hearts, whereupon South was ready for more action with his six trumps, side king and stout heart.

He thought of using Blackwood but bid five hearts instead to show his second-round heart control. This was enough for North. He could find no more fancy bids and simply went to six spades.

Peggy Remembers 'Mama'

NEW YORK (AP) — The once familiar face has changed now. The voice has grown deeper. The light blonde hair is still piled high, but is worn in a bun rather than in a long, twisted braid.

Peggy Wood at 77 seems slimmer than she was a dozen years ago, when first-generation television fans were forced to give up an eight-year habit. It has been that long since "I Remember Mama" went off the air.

"It was such a good show," she reminisces wistfully, touching her mementos—a plain gold wedding band and a small red ribbon pinned near her heart—a decoration from the Norwegian king. She received it in 1951 for helping establish a rapport between Norwegians and other peoples.

"It was episodic, like a short story. The show's producers didn't think much of us, but the audience did or we wouldn't have lasted so long.

"For me and Jud and the kids it was just as well it ended when it did," she continued, crossing her long shapely legs and looking out at the Manhattan skyline from her 21st floor East Side apartment. "It's not good for actors to get typed in one role."

Married for 23 years to businessman William H. Walling, (her first husband, poet John V. A. Weaver, died in 1938) Miss Wood wears the wedding band of another man—Lars Hansen, Papa in the "Mama" serial.

"It's partly sentiment and partly practicality since I lost my real one," she says of the wide gold band, inscribed in the Norwegian tradition, 'Din Lars, 1892.' Bill doesn't mind."

Twelve years ago the familiar face of Peggy Wood departed from the nation's TV screens. Sept. 29 she returns—for one month—as a guest star on the daytime serial, "One Life to Live," (ABC-TV).

"I don't intend to begin doing soap opera parts," Miss Wood said. "I'm only doing this one because my old friend, Doris Quinlan who helped produce 'Mama' asked me to. She said I'd enjoy it, and she was right. When I went for the camera test it was like old home week—so many of the production people were from the 'Mama' crew."

For nearly 60 years Peggy Wood has been an important figure in the theater world. To her acting is a way of life.

"The theater is not a part-time job," she says emphatically. "You're involved all the time because you love it. I went into singing because I could sing. I went into acting because I could act, could really express myself."

When she's not acting herself (she was nominated for an Academy Award in 1965 for her role of the Mother Superior in the movie version of "Sound of Music") Miss Wood is busy doing things for people in the theater or for those aspiring to be. And perhaps because she's persistent she gets things done.

Her latest major accomplishment was the highly acclaimed American College Theater Festival at the Fords and Mall Theaters in Washington D. C.

She got the idea more than five years ago when, as president of ANTA (the American National Theater and Academy) she toured colleges around the country for guest appearances with student actors.

Finding the student performances often superior to those of professionals, Miss Wood spent five years arguing and cajoling until her dream was realized. Under the patronage of The Smithsonian Institution, ANTA, Friends of the Kennedy Center, American Airlines and the Pepsi Cola Co., 10 student groups from universities around the country put on performances in Washington from April 28 to May 12. Miss Wood, who remains honorary chairman, hopes that the festival will be an annual event.

WHY WE SAY

HAIRY CAT: In the Middle Ages it was thought that the caterpillar, which is a stage in the development of a butterfly, was really a cat. The word caterpillar is taken from the Middle English word "catepilose" from Latin "catta," cat and "pilosus" hairy.

DINNER CHAT — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko meets with Secretary of State William Rogers (R) at dinner in New York. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Reds on U.S. Request...Soon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Kremlin has sent word that it will reply "soon" to President Nixon's bid to begin U.S.-Soviet talks on curbing the nuclear arms race.

This message from Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to Secretary of State William P. Rogers Monday night fell short of U.S. hopes. It meant indefinite further delay on the already much-delayed disarmament parley the two superpowers agreed long ago to hold.

Gromyko did not specify what he meant by "soon." State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey commented: "We were satisfied that what was said was meant, and we accepted it."

Rogers and Gromyko held a three-hour dine-and-talk session at Rogers' hotel suite. The Middle East, the United Nations, Germany-Berlin and the treaty to outlaw the spread of nuclear weapons—but not Vietnam or Red China—also were discussed.

Neither Gromyko, who said "we had a very good dinner," nor the Americans claimed progress on these issues. U.S. sources did say the discussion provided a clearer understanding of the opposing views on the Middle East and the two sides agreed to continue the talks between Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin on this crisis.

Rogers apparently found the going slow in his first private meeting with his Soviet counterpart since Nixon took office avowing "negotiation rather than confrontation" with the Communist camp. Gromyko hosts a follow-up meeting Friday night.

On SALT—The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which Nixon had publicly hoped to get under way by mid-August in Vienna or Geneva—Gromyko told reporters only that "the time will come" for a Soviet statement.

McCloskey reported Gromyko told Rogers: "We will give you a reply on a time and place for preliminary talks soon."

U.S. officials said the term preliminary talks meant discussion of the mechanics—methods of conducting the talks, agenda, use of interpreters, place, time and similar details.

It has been three years, according to the U.S. version, since the United States first proposed the talks. Neither Washington nor Moscow has backed down from its professed desire to hold discussions aimed at restraining their spiraling atomic arms rivalry.

Agreement in Ellenville Between Teachers, Board

ELLENVILLE — An agreement has been reached between the Ellenville Central School District Board of Education and the Ellenville Teachers Association on a contract for the 1969-70 school year.

The terms of the agreement were announced by the board, following formal ratification of the contract by the teachers on Sept. 16. The board had ratified the contract at an earlier date.

The new contract, which has been under negotiation since the beginning of the year, provides for a starting salary of $6,900 for teachers with a bachelor's degree, with steps of $315 per year service to the district.

The salary schedule further provides for $180 steps for every nine hours of graduate study accumulated beyond the bachelors' degree.

According to district officials, it will be possible under the schedule, for a teacher to receive a reimbursement for up to 153 hours of post graduate study. Moreover, teacher's will receive an additional $200 salary increase for any advance degree earned.

In addition to the base salary, agreement was reached on provisions for payment for extra-curricular services, such as clubs and coaching.

Approval was also given to an arrangement which will provide sabbatical leave for one teacher per school year. Other new provisions of the contract are aimed at improving communication among the staff, administration, and Board of Education.

Flood Control Team to Inspect Tivoli Dam, 21 Others in Dutchess

TIVOLI — Inspectors from the New York State Water Resources Commission will inspect three dams in Dutchess County Thursday, including a somewhat dilapidated one in the Village of Tivoli.

The ancient structure was brought to the public's attention this summer by the Tivoli Village Board, which sought to find a way of reinforcing it for safety's sake.

County Representative Madison Sipperly was instrumental in obtaining the quick services of the Flood Control Committee of Civil Defense to inspect the Tivoli dam. Its findings indicated that it was indeed in very poor shape, and posed a hazard to the immediate vicinity, although no homes were threatened.

The state inspectors will look at dams in Clinton Corners and in the southern part of the county as well as the one in Tivoli.

Sipperly said he expects that the group will be at the Tivoli site between 11 and 12 a.m., with Fire Chief Harold Lasher of Red Hook in attendance.

"We have asked that the state send us a written copy of their findings on the dam, including recommendations for its future and where the money is coming from, as soon as possible," said Sipperly to The Freeman.

Previous inspections found the dam to be losing large chunks of concrete, cracking and jammed with loose and floating debris.

Some views of the beautiful Blanch home off Glasco Turnpike in Woodstock, N. Y.

"An Unpleasant Education in Heating Costs . . . Our Long Cold Winter, or Why We Changed To OIL HEAT!"

"My new contemporary home was designed as two separate but connecting houses, the smaller section being the children's bedroom and play area of approximately 5400 cubic feet, and the larger section being the adults' house and studio of approximately 18,000 cubic feet.

"The heat for the adult side as well as the domestic hot water for both houses is supplied by oil. The children's side was heated by electric heat. The local electric utility made a heating cost estimate of approximately $120.00 per heating season for the children's house.

"However, the actual cost to heat the children's side with electric heat was approximately $274.00 — more than double the estimate! Not only was the heating cost extreme for that small area but the heating was inadequate, although exactly the same insulation was used as in both sections of our home.

"Actual cost for oil to heat the larger house as well as to heat the entire domestic hot water supply for both houses was $395.67 for the same heating period.

"Broken down per area it cost us almost 2½ times more to heat with electricity than with oil.

"After the initial shock of the high electric bills, I switched from electricity to oil to heat the children's house. Not only will the oil heat prove to cost substantially less, but it heats the children's bedrooms more than satisfactory which electric heat failed to do."

—*Ann Blanch

*No one who testifies for oil heat is paid to do so. After all, oil heat pays for itself!
